Rain to dampen area travel plans

Northwest suburban residents planning an outing this weekend better bring along umbrellas.

Thunderstorms and cooler weather will be ushered into the area tonight from Wisconsin and rain is expected to stay in the area through Sunday. Saturday temperatures will be in the 70s. Cool weather is forecast for Sunday, but Southern Illinois will enjoy pleasant weather,

Father's Day will be cool and cloudy.

Area residents driving north will find lane restrictions on the Tri-State Tollway in each direction between Willow Road and Stearn School Road.

To the south, road construction will continue to keep lanes closed on the Stevenson Expressway and motorists are ugred to seek an alternate route.

Utility tax likely to be banished

by BILL HILL A news anaylsis

Several Artington Heights trustees continue to favor repealing the village's controversial 5 per cent utility tax, despite warnings from administrative officials that the tax may be needed in future years to pay for general operations in the village.

Indications from trustees are that the tax will be repealed by the end of the year when all projects it now funds are paid.

But the utility tax or some comparable revenue source is going to be needed in the immediate future to balance the village's general operating budget. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson told the fiscal policy planning committee this week.

THE UTILITY TAX, which costs an average homeowner about $75 a year, nets the village approximately $1.5 million annually, Finance Director Kenneth Bonder said.

To use utility tax revenue for general operations would be a policy change in Arlington Heighte. Since levied in 1970, the utility tax always has been used for specific projects, such as water wells, reservoirs, sew-

The utility tax became highly controversial in 1975 when it was extended 10 months to finance the new public works garage.

Many cities use the utility tax to provide general operating revenue and some with home-rule powers have a utility tax as high as 7 per cent, Bonder sald.

BUT TRUSTEES contacted Thursday said the utility tax was intended to fund only specific projects and they favor its repeal.

"It seems to me we should decide what is needed and then find a way to pay for it. We need to decide our philosophy on who is going to benefit by services and who is going to pay for them," Trustee Madeline Schroeder

Projects that serve future residents should not be paid off quickly by present residents, she said. "The people who use services should participate in paying for them," she said. Trustees Frank Palmatier and Alfred Barboro said they had not decided if they will vote to repeal the utility tax, but Village Pres. James

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) - Black rioters, enraged by police shoooting school children, burned and looted the black enclave of Soweto Thursday then ransacked another black township, setting fire to shops. Police reinforcements moved in armored cars to crush the worst violence in South Africa in 16 years.

A contingent of police reinforce-rampaging blacks set fire to shops and beer halls and began smashing windows and looting other stores.

The violence was the worst in South Africa since 1960 when police killed 69 black rioters in one afternoon in Sharpeville.

In Johannesburg, motorcycle gangs of whites rode into a peaceful protest march by whites and blacks and scattered them with "chains, broken bot-tles and clubs," according to witnesses.

The march to city hall by a group of about 1,000 white students of the University of the Witwatersrand and black supporters was to protest police action in Soweto in opening fire into a crowd of demonstrating black school-(Continued on Page 3)

WINGED WONDER of a service station is part of a book and display on Chicago architecture. The station, Rand and Elmhurst roads in Mount Prospect, was designed by Laurence Booth and has been the recipient of ewards since its construction in 1972.

Architects want their buildings and designs to make statements: essays in brick and steel; form and function in a usable, enduring art form. But does architect Laurence Booth's Arco service station, Elm-featured in the Chicago Time-Life Building. The station, built in 1972, was honored that year with a Distinguished Building Award given by the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects. What has been described as a building "which squats like a giant prehistoric bird in Mount Prospect," is now "enhanced" with fluttering pennants, and signs crying "Gas For Less" and "Under New took over the station with a partner about two months ago. Booth said the design "was an exploration of the gas station of the future, but more than that. The whole commercial strip concept should be low-key, more human." HE SAID the station was an attempt to market goods in a man-

Ford, aides ponder airlift Busch of Americans in Beirut

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Wednesday in Beirut. Ford Thursday got a "thorough review" of the situation in Lebanon during a 90-minute meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and other senior officials, the White House

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen would give no hint whether the United States had decided to evacuate 1,400 Americans from the Beirut

"President Ford received a thorough review of the situation in Lebanon. He was brought up to date," Nessen told newsmen.

Kissinger, smiling at newsmen, left the White House without saying any-

Nessen said he planned nothing further, but he appeared to leave open the possibility the White House might announce evacuation of Americans

Ambassador L. Dean Brown, President Ford's special envoy, was leaving Thursday night for Damascus, Syria, to pick up the bodies of Ambassador Francis Meloy and his economic counselor, Robert O. Waring. They and their chauffeur were slain

Ford had summoned top national security officials to the White House to discuss evacuation in Beirut. Kissinger earlier told the House International Relations Committee, "If U.S. personnel are used, it will be a very short operation" and "we will, of course, consult with Congress."

There was speculation Ford faced several options including:

- Thin down the embassy staff of 53 personnel and encourage non-Americans to leave.
- Order an evacuation, flying out evacuees either from Beirut airport or Damascus by commercial aircraft.
- · Order a military-style evacuation, using helicopters and ships of the 6th Fleet.

In Beirut, meantime, the Palestine Liberation Organization said three Lebanese gunmen had confessed to the murder of U.S. Ambassador Francis Meloy Jr., his economic counselor and their chauffeur. It said the slayings were "part of a plot" and the killers were "working for someone arrested by Palestinian security agents confessed to the slaying of Meloy, economic counselor Robert O. Waring and the Lebanese chauffeurbodyguard Zuheir Moghrabi in a Moslem sector of Beirut.

A PLO spokesman told a news conference that three Lebanese gunmen

The spokesman said the three were still being interrogated because, "It has become clear their crime was part of a plot."

"Theirs was not an isolated act," the PLO spokesman said. "They were working for somebody else. We are still trying to find out who."

.The bodies, wrapped in bloodied carpets and dumped from a speeding car on a coastal road in western Beirut Wednesday afternoon, were still at the American University of Beirut hospital. They had been taken there for identification by the Red Cross patrol who found them.

An embassy spokesman refused to say when or how the American bodies would be returned to the United States, but reliable sources said they may be moved early Friday morning. Both Meloy and Waring were from Washington, D.C.

The PLO spokesman identified the accused assassins only as "Lebanese

Serious crime in U.S. rises 4 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) - There were fewer murders around the United States in the first three months of this year compared with last year, but New York City was still at the top of list for the crime, the FBI reported Thursday.

Serious crime in the United States rose 4 per cent in the first quarter of 1976 but crimes of violence fell 7 per cent with murder taking a big drop of 11 per cent. the FBI said.

The 4 per cent increase represented a slackening from the 18 per cent increase during the first three months of 1975 from the same quarter in 1974, but FBI Director Clarence Kelley said the increase was still a "serious prob-

Spokesmen for the FBI and the Justice Department said there was no immediate explanation for the slack-

"The continued rise in reported crime remains a serious problem for the criminal justice system and the nation," Kelley said, noting serious crime was 9 per cent higher in 1975 than 1974.

Kelley made the 1976 first-quarter figures public in an FBI Uniform Crime Report, based on statistics from 69 city, county and state law enforcement agencies.

Seven "serious" crimes constitute the Crime Index - the "violent" crimes of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault; and the "property" crimes of burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft.

Taken together, the violent and property crimes rose 4 per cent in the first quarter of 1976.

But the "violent" crimes fell 7 per cent in the first quarter of this year from 1975, the report said. The only violent crime to increase was rape, 1 per cent, but murder fell 11 per cent, robbery 10 per cent and aggravated assault 3 per cent, it said.

While the first-quarter murder rate fell overall, Detroit had 154 murders compard to 123 in 1975. New York fell from 395 to 338, and Philadelphia, from 113 to 85.

Among Illinois' three major cities, only Rockford experienced an overall increase in the number of serious crimes committed in the period.

The total number of serious crimes went down in Chicago and Peoria for the period, but all three cities had significant rises in the number of larceny-thefts committed. Police said the new craze for stealing CB radios was to blame.

The number of major crimes went up in all but two categories in Rockford. There were five forcible rapes in the early part of both years.

Armed robberies, however, decreased from 101 to 55, and Rockford Police Chief Delbert Peterson attributed the improvement to the arrest of armed robbery gang members in northern Illinois and southern Wiscon-

Peterson said CB radios were responsible for the larceny-theft increase from 1,070 to 1,346.

"They're a big headache," he said. "We have four or five reports a day. We're working on special plans to use decoys in the city's hospital and other parking lots to increase the number of arrests.

He attributed other crime increases to a "disregard for property and life."

In Chicago the total crime index went down 5 per cent for the first three months of 1976, from 52,564 crimes reported to 49,540. The city also showed decreases in all serious categories except murder and larceny theft.

Chicago Police Department spokesman David Mozee said the Wincrest Nursing Home fire was responsible for the rise in murders for the period from 210 in the first quarter of 1975 to 234 in the same thee months of 1976. The Jan. 30 fire claimed 25 lives.

On larceny theft, Mozee said, CB radio theft accounted for most of the increase.

Peoria's total crime index went down 6 per cent — from 2,740 to 2,553, but the larceny-theft increased 17 per cent, from 1,257 to 1,524.

"Reports of CB radio thefts have been doubling every year and last year accounted for half the total number of thefts," Police Superintendent Alan Andrews said.

The "six or eight" smuggiers escaped on foot when agents approached them on the dock. Court rules on 'Miranda' warnings

The Supreme Court ruled Thursday that prosecutors cannot use the fact that a defendant remained silent when arrested to imply that an alibi used at his trial is a lie. The 6-3 ruling bars prosecutors from questioning a defendant on the stand about why he remained silent when questioned by police rather than provide the excuse he is attempting to use as a defense at trial. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., writing for the majority, said when a defendant is given his "miranda" warnings, including that he has a right to remain silent, he has a reasonable expectation that taking advantage of the right won't be used against him when he goes to trial.

Mercenaries called 'society scum

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — The prosecution Thursday called 13 American and British mercenaries the "scum of human society" and demanded the death penalty for all. Spectators burst into applause and shouted "Death, death!"

"It is not our job to give graduated punishment here," Prosecutor Rui Montiero said in closing arguments.

"For their grave crimes against the Angolan people, they can only be punished through death by shooting."

As Monteiro ended his three-hour and 20-minute closing statement, the spectators in the brightly lit courtroom burst into sustained applause interspersed with shouts of "death, death.'

The defendants glanced nervously at each other in the dock as they heard the words and broke into agitated exchanges among themselves.

The bearded prosecutor repeated his death demand as he wrapped up his case with a long tirade against the West and accusations that the U.S. government bankrolled the opponents of the victorious Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola in the former Portuguese colony's civil war. Monteiro singled out California

Gary Acker and Argentine-American Gustavo Grillo as two defendants who should be shown no leniency. The faces of both men, who had thought they might get off lighter than others on trial, dropped as they heard Monteiro mention their names even before he referred to Costas "Col. Tony Callan" Georghiou, accused of murdering several of his mercenary comrades.

Monteiro scoffed at the defense put forward by 21-year-old Acker, from Sacramento, Calif. He said Acker's claims he had been in Angola for only three days without firing a shot before capture and that he suffered from mental problems were "a parody."

The claim by 25-year-old Grillo that he was converted to socialism during his five months of captivity received equal treatment.

"He put his intelligence to the help of his defense, but he is one of the most military competent of them all," Monteiro said.

He did not mention by name the third American, Daniel Gearhart, a 34-year-old Vietnam veteran with a wife and four children in Kensington, Monteiro called the defendants the "scum of human society." He said they were "illegal" fighters but said the involvement of Cuban troops, who fought alongside Popular Movement

U. S. District Court Judge Abraham L. Marovitz criticized the federal parole board Thursday for ignoring its own guidelines in the case of former Ald. Paul T. Wigoda, and indicated he may reduce Wigoda's sentence. Wigoda entered federal prison in Lexington, Ky., Jan. 9 after being convicted in 1974 of filing a false income tax return by not reporting a $50,000 zoning payoff. He was sentenced to one year and a day in prison by Marovitz, and became eligible for parole in April. However, the board denied Wigoda a parole, saying he did not meet its guidelines for income tax evasion convictions, which call for serving 12 to 16 months in prison.

Cement bribe skim told

A federal prosecutor said Thursday one defendant in the cement bribery trial skimmed $10,000 of the top of a $30,000 payoff fund without telling his colleagues about it. Assistant U.S. Atty. James Holderman said in his closing argument that defendant Peter V. Pappas kept the bulk of the bribe money while misleading both the cement industry, which was making the payoff, and six legislators who benefitted from it. When the cement industry actually made the payoff in the fall of 1972, Holderman said, there was a $900 shortage-so that the actual bribe fund totaled only $29,100, Holderman said that Pappas, rather than taking a smaller bribe himself, left State Rep. Robert Craig, D-Danville, holding the short end. Holderman said Craig received only $4,000 rather than the $5,000 be had been promised.

Village boards and city councils in the Northwest suburbs will be asked to enforce existing sprinkling ordinances stringently as part of an areawide water conservation program, area public works directors agreed Thursday.

The directors, representing 9 of the 16 members of the Northwest Municipal Conference, agreed to ask for the strict enforcement as an interim step before proposing an areawide sprinkling policy.

Earlier in the week, the directors from four municipal conference communities suggested that all 16 adopt an ordinance limiting sprinkling to certain days and providing a $500 fine for each violation.

William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the conference, said the directors at the meeting Thursday decided to talk about the areawide ordinance again next month after finding out what effect enforcement of present ordinances will have on water

In addition to asking communities to enforce existing ordinances, Muhlenfeld said, the directors agreed to ask villages that do not have sprinkling ordinances to adopt them.

Public works officials have been expressing concern about the need for increasing water conservation since the hot spell that began two weeks ago. Water consumption in the Northwest suburbs has been running above peak levels from last year.

Youth music unit seeks $14,800 organization that has sponsored the string music program in Arlington Heights Dist. 25, will request a $14,800 subsidy from the board for the 1976-77 school year.

Ernest M. Templeton, president of the Music For Youth board, said the group will bring the proposal to the board Thursday. "Due to the financial problems facing the school board, we have little hope of reinstatement in the school district or of receiving any funding help this year," Templeton said.

The organization is projecting a $27,000 budget for the 1976-77 school year, including $9,000 in revenue from parent donations, $1,300 from the annual spring concert, a $1,900 balance from this year's budget and the $14,800 subsidy from Dist. 25.

The group estimated expenses as $26,000 in music teachers' salaries, $250 for postage, $500 for printing and $250 in miscellaneous costs.

Music For Youth, a private parents' to pass a tax rate increase referendum in 1970. The program has operated in Dist. 25 elementary and junior high schools with the help of a yearly subsidy from the district.

> Last spring the group requested $10,000 subsidy from Dist. 25 and received $5,500, Templeton said.

per year for one pre-school child to $80 a year for a school-aged child, has been set. Last year the board originally balked at subsidizing the prograin because 30 per cent of the families did not pay a dination.

Templeton said because of a lack of funds this year, the Music For Youth board was forced to hire three parttime teachers rather than a full-time violin teacher-director.

"This action was successful financially, but caused a a lowering of quality in over-all teaching effectiveness as the part-time teachers were not experienced or certified," Templeton said.

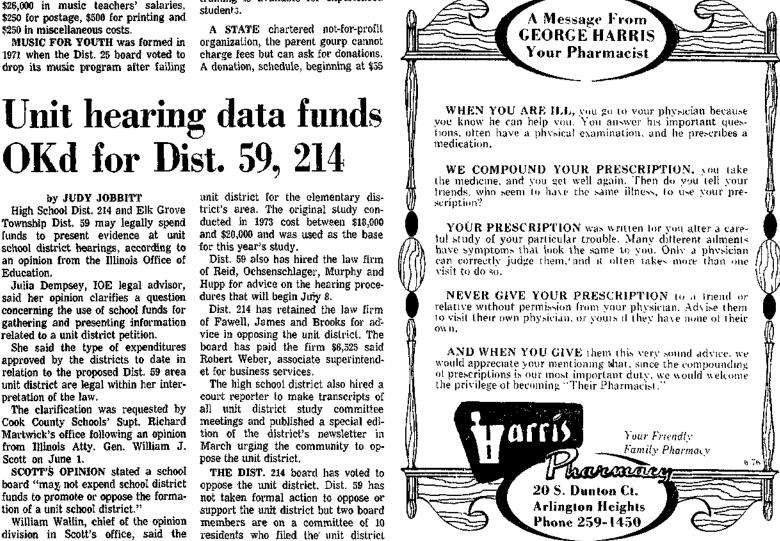

"PARENTS' DONATIONS can only cover half or less than half of the staff budget unless the donations are doubled, causing further strain on supportive parents," he said.

The "ideal solution" would be for the string music program to be reinstaled by Dist. 25, but Music For Youth could maintain the program "with sufficient aid from the Board of Education," Templeton said.

Templeton said the group was able to end the year with the surplus of funds because a local music company, which provides instruments for the program, donated some violins, paid the donation for some children whose parents could not afford the program and supplied printing costs. He said when current bills are paid, the group should have about $1,000.

Music For Youth uses the Suzuki method of instruction through which children learn by imitation and repetition. Violin and cello are offered.

Banishment likely for utility tax

RYAN SAID HE is committed to abolishing the utility tax.

"It has proved to be an unfair approach to taxation because a disproportionate amount of that tax is paid by single-family homeowners. It is also unfair because it is not deductible." Ryan said.

Village officials have suggested that the utility tax may be needed to cover general operations because of inflation, but also because of plans to build a new police station and additional quarters at Fire Station No. 2.

It also is going to be expensive to get Lake Michigan water out to the area once the allocation is approved. Hanson told the fiscal policy planning committee Wednesday.

"I felt as long as these tax funds were available that we would find projects to use them for." Griffin said. "It's easy to justify a project when you have surplus money around. but I wonder if the taxpayers would approve building a new public safety building if it were put to a referen-

The $3 employe head tax being proposed by Cook County would provide the Village of Arlington Heights with naily $500,000 annually, but it still is unpopular with many trustees who say it will hamper efforts to attract new industry to the village.

Howlett, Thompson rap head tax

by STEVE BROWN

Michael J. Howlett and James R. Thompson, the state's gubernatorial candidates, said Thursday they were opposed to plans to levy a head tax on businesses in Cook County.

Both men indicated their opposition to the plan, proposed by County Board Pres. George Dunne during conversations with reporters after a joint speaking engagement.

'I would hope Pres. Dunne would find some other way to raise revenue. I think we would be better off without it." Howlett said.

Howlett also said he did not plan to discuss the tax proposal with Dunne, adding that he did not believe there would be a voter backlash in the county against him if it is approved.

The

Tenure for teachers-has it outlived it's usefullness?

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The year is 1940 in a small town in Southern Illinois. The high school coach, one of the most well respected members of the community, is fired by the board of education.

His crime? The coach, it seems did not purchase his new car from the dealership owned by the president of the board.

The incident occurred just a few years before Illinois adopted a tenure law protecting teachers from firing for such arbitrary reasons.

Teachers are placed on tenure after a two-or three-year probationary peried. They can only be dismissed for reasons listed in the tenure statute with the school board supplying evidence.

In the years since its adoption, tenure has consistently provoked arguments over its value to education. It continues to emerge as one of the most controversial laws on the books.

Critics argue that tenure virtually guarantees a teacher a job for life by making it next to impossible to fire him. While the intent of the law was good, opponents say tenure has been abused and today only promotes me-diocrity by protecting the lazy, disinterested teacher.

CRITICS FREQUENTLY point to their own occupations, saying they have no such protection and must be accountable to their employers or risk losing their job. Why, they ask, do teachers deserve such a privilege?

One of tenure's more persistent critics is State Rep. Donald Deuster, R-Mundelein, who for several years has unsuccessfully attempted to pass legislation modifying the tenure law.

Deuster said tenure was first used to protect university professors, cloistered behind "the ivy covered walls." These individuals were ill equipped for anything but intellectual pursuits and tenure insured that "they wouldn't be thrown out into the cruel world where they couldn't cope," he

Tenure also was intended to prevent abuses at the elementary and secondary education level. Before tenure it was not uncommon for newly elected board members to fire teachers and replace them with their relatives. campaign workers and supporters, said Deuster. And, he said, "if a teacher wouldn't go to bed with a school board member she would be fired and his mistress hired."

During the era of McCarthyism tenure also protected teachers who might be suspect for teaching their students about communism, said Deuster. It also protected the teacher from losing his job "for giving an "F" to the son the bank president.

"There are valid reasons for tensaid Deuster, but the system has gotten out of hand. "Everybody agrees that tenure has a good purpose but it is not functioning well," he said.

TODAY THERE ARE "so many outstanding, top notch teachers coming out of college," said Deuster, but they cannot find jobs because those jobs are already "locked in" by "unfit, substandard teachers" who were hired when there was a shortage.

If Deuster has his way, administrators will have a method to rid school districts of these teachers through a revision in the tenure law which he plans to introduce in the fall legislative session.

The tenure law now reads that teachers may be dismissed for "incompetency, cruelty, negligence, immorality or other sufficent cause" or if the board of education feels the teacher is not qualified to teach and his dismissal would be in the best interest of the schools. More to come.

Deuster wants to add one more phrase to the law providing for dismissal for "inferior educational performance." Along with this provision, Deuster is considering re-introducing one of his former bills which would require boards of education to adopt standards for teachers. His proposals also would require the evaluation of teachers annually so that administrators could establish a record of a teacher's performance to back up a school district in a dismissal case.

In the past, Deuster's attempts to change tenure have been strongly opposed by teacher unions. This time, Deuster said he'll "be interested to see if the unions want to defend inferieducational performance."

Melamine

What unions probably will question, he said, is who will determine what is inferior performance. Such performance would be determined by those who carry out the other provisions in the law - the board of education, a hearing officer and ultimately the courts, he said.

IT IS THIS LEGAL battle that often ensures when a school district fires a tenured teacher and critics argue that tenure guarantees a teacher a job for life because charges such as "incompetence," and "negligence" are difficult to prove. David Tomcheck, local representative of the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers' union, does not agree. The problem with tenure is that "everybody has hidden behind it," he said.

The association, which provides legal services for its members, has rarcly won a case on the question of fitness to teach, said Tomcheck.

Most cases are won because incorrect procedures were followed to dismiss the tenured teacher. "The old argument that you can't fire a teacher really doesn't hold water," he maintains.

The instances of firings are "relatively infrequent," said Tomcheck, because school officials prefer to 'ease people out" through forced resignation or unfavorable transfers in job positions.

School officials don't want to go through the due process procedures for dismissal, said Tomcheck. There is "generally an attitude on the part of management that they're doing a teacher a favor because he would he better off elsewhere," said Tomcheck, who characterizes this attitude as the worst sor! of "paternalism."

Richard Zweiback, professional negeliator for many local school boards can understand why school officials are hesitant to enter a long, legal battle dismissing a teacher.

Tenure "has never really been a protection for incompetency," said Zweiback. Teachers can be fired under the tenure law but school boards must realize that "you're talking about thousands of dollars" and that sometimes the "cost makes it prohibi-Live."

ZWEIBACK ESTIMATES that a school district can spend from $8,000 to $10,000 in legal fees to take a teacher to court. The teacher's legal fees are usually paid by his union. "If there is the slightest chance" that the teacher will improve, he is often retained, Zweiback said.

The problem becomes a vicious circle now that local school districts are declining in enrollment, said Zweiback. A drop in enrollment means the district needs fewer teachers but it also means school districts have less revenue and must cut expenses. As a school district needs to make more and more reductions in teaching staff, it has more trouble justifying the legal expense of firing a tenured teacher.

Tomcheck said he doesn't like the idea that school districts should get rid of older, less proficient teachers replacing them with young teachers at the beginning of the salary schedule. "What was the expectation these people had when they took on this career?" he asked. "They do have a very fundamental right to their careers.' Tomcheck also said he dislikes the argument that teachers are the only employes who have guaranteed job security. "The majority of employes are covered by tenure, some kind of 'just cause' provision in their contracts or some procedure for dismissal." he said. Any employe who is "covered by a bargaining agreement" has the same protection, he said.

Now that teacher unions have become so powerful, and collective bargaining for public employes soon may become state law, some people are wondering whether tenure is even necessary any more.

"Today's unions in effect do away with the need for tenure," said Zweiback, because unions fight strongly against dismissal of teachers and rigid procedures for dismissal are being written into teachers contracts. "With the evolution of labor-type organizations in the public sector the tenure law has lost its purpose," he said.

Deuster sees the logic of this argument. "If we have collective bargaining, tenure is unnecessary and could be abolished," he said.

Without tenure, said Deuster, every school board would be required "to bargin with big unions. I'm not sure I want to tip the scales that way."

Dismiss teachers who don't do jobs well, some urge

"I think teachers should be just like my husband - if he doesn't perform he loses his job." said Arlington Heights homeowner Dorothy Asplund.

Mrs. Asplund, like many average citizens, has very few good things to say about tenure.

"I think it's terrible," she said. Mrs. Asplund is the mother of five children and has had her share of disagreements with teachers and school administrators. While there are some excellent teachers, the tenure law does protect those who would be better off in another occupation, she

Mrs. James Mann, also a resident of Arlungton Heights and mother of four, said she agrees totally with Mrs. Asplund. Teachers "have to do their jobs or they shouldn't be there," she

WHILE TEACHERS are entitled to some rights "over-all, I don't feel it is a fair law to the public" because it protects poor teachers, said Louis Litrento, a salesman from Waukegan. Teachers "should be able to stand up on their own merits like everyone Tenure leads to poor education, said Kori Curran, homemaker from St. Charles, "It makes it virtually impossible to eliminate those from the teaching profession that aren't qualified," she said.

"If you can't get rid of a had teacher then the kids can't benefit." said Janet Dahl, a recent graduate of Prospect High School. She said she once had a teacher who stood in front of her class and said bluntly that he hated kids.

Des Plaines student Mike Curran. who is graduating this summer from Maine West High School, said he thinks tenure is good, but admits that his feelings are biased because his sister is a teacher.

HIS CLASSMATE, Jay Decker, sees both good and bad points of tenure. There is a lot of "dead weight" in the teaching profession, he said, and "there are so many young teachers coming out of school who are really on the ball" but can't get jobs.

But In a way tenure is good, said Decker. Without it "they'd be kicking out all the teachers who want to teach what they believe."

Spotlight on prestige in convention cities

New York polishes image for a 'Democratic Party'

NEW YORK (UPI) - Fiscally-strapped New York City is dressing up in its best bicentennial red, white and blue to host next month's Democratic National Convention in hopes of taking in plenty of green and polishing up its tarnished image.

The city is spending $3.5 million at the modernistic Madison Square Garden in midtown Manhattan just to cover rental, insurance and construction of the podium, seating for the 5,100 delegates and alternates and the press area for the four-day hoopla beginning July 12.

New York also expects to shell out $2.6 million in police overtime, most of which is covered by grants from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and about $100,000 each in such categories as parking sites for delegate buses and sanitation work.

"Most of the police work will be in security at the Garden and the hotels of the delegates," says Asst. Police Chief Daniel J. Courtenay, who is in charge of security, "We now plan to have about 1,000 men in the area of overtime cost for the police force will be to control demonstrations. In just one of them, some 130,000 demonstrators are expected in a "Right to Life" march the day before the convention opens. The same day there also will be a large "gay rights" march.

"We are not against anybody making their views known and we don't expect any trouble," Courtenay said. There have been a lot of groups who have come to us seeking cooperation. We hope to work out mutually agreeable arrangements with all."

While the byerall cost of the convention is expected to hit the $6 million mark - with the federal government picking up $2.82 million of that amount - the 25,000-35,000 visitors are expected to spend $8 million.

That estimate comes from Preston Robert Tisch, president of the Citizens Committee for the Democratic National Convention, who says the money probably will be turned over 'roughly three times, so we will come up with a total in the neighborhood of $25 million."

Additionally, the three major television networks will spend "millions of dollars" for convention coverage. ccording to spokesmen.

The enthusiastic but apolitical Citizen's Committee already has raised $200,000 to polish up the Big Apple, entertain delegates and lecture the locals on what the convention means to the city.

With the media focus on New York during the convention, the citizen's committee hopes to sell the world on the city and consequently pick up its sagging tourist industry.

Charles Gillett, president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau says, "This is by no means the biggest convention of the year it ranks about seventh or eighth — but the publicity value is 1,000 times more valuable."

The gaudy Times Square area, rife with pimps, prostitutes and porn shops, is being cleaned up. A separate committee of area businessmen has been set up just for that purpose, and they are on the move.

this summer. A Democratic Party to Miami Beach convention last month delivered a paper based on interviews with 42 call girls across the country. The report concluded that national political conventions will be their major revenue sources.

> HOWEVER, SUCH "action" won't directly help hte city's tax coffers. Any benefits the city would get would be in the "turnover" area, when the ladies of the night spend their money.

The Citizen's Committee has plans for colorful plantings along Fifth and Sixth Avenues - main arteries the delegates will be traveling - placing bunting on buildings and bathing a portion of the Empire State Building in red, white and blue lights. The Coca Cola Bottling Company is donating between 800 and 900 flags of the 56 delegations.

Johnny Carson is one of our worst detractors with his jokes about New York muggings," says J. Andrew Hayes, vice president of the Citizen's Committee. "We hope to counter that by putting on a good show and laying on the hospitality."

Last month Democratic leaders from 41 of the state and territorial delegations were given a "walkthrough" of arrangements made for them. They were met at the airports, as will all the delegations at convention time, taken to their respective hotels, introduced to the managers and given a tour of the city and con-

"IT'S GOING to be a good convention," South Carolina state chairman Don Fowler says. He says there should be no apprehension or fear over whether the decision to bring the convention here was wise.

Charles Manatt, California state chairman, says he is "very pleased with everything." His only regret was that the convention was going to be held here instead of Los Angeles, the runner-up city in the choice of sites.

Credit for nabbing the convention is generally given to New York State's Democratic chairman, Patrick Cunningham, with plenty of help from Mayor Abraham D. Beame and Gov. Hugh L. Carey, also Democrats. Ironically, Cunningham was indicted only six weeks before the convention for political wrongdoing and has temporarily suspended himself from the Physical work on the convention site already is under way. The telephone company has been working since last November on installation of 6,000 telephones, 1,000 special service circuits such as teletypwriter, data and audio, 77 video lines, 250 additional public telephones — a total of 7,000 to 10,000 expected "customer service orders.'

It's costing $7 million and New York Telephone doesn't anticipate a huge profit. It only "hopes to break even, a spokesman says.

Kansas City hoping to shed it's 'cow town' shadow

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - Sharing the river bottoms west of Kansas City's skyscrapers are warehouses of mud-red brick and rusty corrugated sidings, noisy, rank-smelling stockyards and lonely boxcars the railroads seem to have forgotten.

Only one thing disturbs the uniform dreariness of the neighborhood - the $21 million Kemper Arena, site of the 1976 Republican National Convention.

Shaped like an Eastern hatbox, pristine in the unblemished white of its steel sides but wrapped around the top with an ungainly network of tubular girders, the arena is a monument to Kansas city's cow town past and officials hope — its convention center future.

No building is more important to the Texas-style plans of city boosters.

If the Republicans come and go without any hitches, and the hordes of politicians, reporters and gawkers are favorably impressed, the city stands to reap a bonanza of publicity that money could never buy in conventions, industries and jobs.

KANSAS CITY knew there was money to be made and prestige to be won when it sent Ray Bennison, director of its convention and visitors bureau, to bid for the GOP convention.

The awesome economic impact of Bennison's successful mission is just beginning to sink in.

"The city will profit enormously in money from the convention," said Josephine Good, convention director on the Republican national staff in Washington. "There's bound to be a profit for practically anybody."

Some aspects of what she is talking

• The 20,000 delegates, news media representatives and guests at the Aug. 16-20 convention are expected to spend between $5 million and $8 million on food, drinks, hotels and entertain-

• The GOP itself plans to spend $2 million, not only for operating expenses during convention week but the voluminous paperwork and physical preparations beforehand. The party's budget does not reflect the $500,000 the city is spending to prepare the convention site.

• Each of the three major television networks plans to send 500 to 600 persons to Kansas City and spend an estimated $1 million to $1.5 million on convention coverage, including weeks of advance preparations. Part of the networks' costs will be installation of a new, brighter lighting system in the arena to replace one that is barely a year old. • Convention security is budgeted at $2.6 million. The biggest chunk will go for overtime pay for the police (more than $600 for each Kansas City officer), whose spending will further enrich the local economy.

· Convention publicity already has generated $50 million in new convention business for the next five vears. Bennison said. That represents 200,000 delegates coming to Kansas

"It's going to put us on the map for national and international conventions," said Bennison, a glad-handing but serious man who never seems to stop moving.

His goal is to put Kansas City among the 10 leading U.S. convention cities by 1981 (it now ranks 17th) and the top five by 1986.

The GOP convention's long-term influence on Kansas City commerce is hard to guess, but officials are no less optimistic.

"What it boils down to is, if we come off good - which we will - it will be a positive factor in our future growth," said Bruce Hicks of the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Kansas City.

Bennison sayd the convention publicity alone is worth $10 million to the city. Someone joked that nothing short of hosting World War III could have brought Kansas City as much attention from the news media.

BUT THE PUBLICITY is a doubleedged sword.

"If the conditions in Kansas City are good, it should help the city for future conventions unbelievably, but it can also hurt if it's not good," Miss Good said.

The city is busy solving a myriad of logistical problems before the first convention delegate arrives.

Restaurateurs will expand their hours and hire extra employes to handle the crowds. They speak enthusiastically of selling as many as 250,000 Kansas City strip steaks that week. At 20 strips to a steer, that would require a herd of 12,500 cattle. about as many as pass through the stockyards adjavent to the arena in an average week.

Stores in such elegant shopping areas as Crown Center and Country Club Plaza also will be open longer hours, with liberalized check-cashing policies to entice Republican souvenir buyers.

Liquor distributors are laying on extra drivers as required for emergency

The telephone company is well under way with plans to install 10,000 extra telephones, thousands of private lines, teletypes, switchboards, and 44 video channels and 180 audio channels for broadcasters. It will all be enough to equip a town the size of Hannibal. Mo. (population 19,000), whose most famous native, Mark Twain, once said, "I do not know much about politics and am not sitting up nights to learn.'

STILL, THE Republican staff says it is 4,700 short of the 16,000 hotel rooms required for the convention. Some large state delegations have been forced to take rooms in several hotels, which will make caucuses more dificult.

"Every hotel of any kind — good, bad or indifferent - will be used," Miss Good said.

Another question mark is how to transport everybody between hotels, and arena. No hotel is within walking distance of the arena, and transportation arrangements still are un-

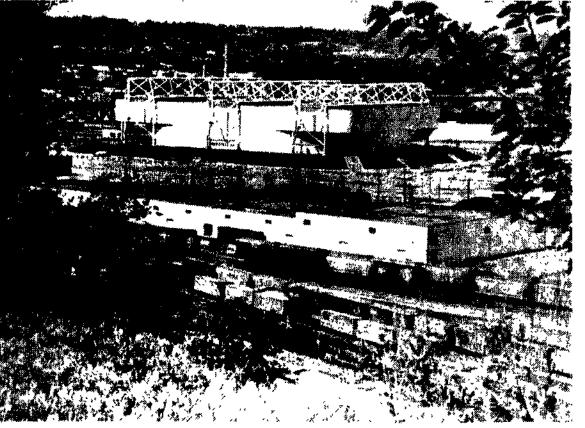

THE PREVAILING mood, though, optimism - a feeling that with typical Midwestern friendliness and a little luck, everything will run smoothly for what looks like a close, exciting convention battle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

The convention notwithstanding, Charles Jennings, president of the Kansas City Stock Yards Co., wants the city to promote itself as the agribusiness capital of the world.

"We're always trying to shed our cow town image," he said. "There's some good about the cow town image. Let's be what we are."

Some other citizens are proud of the city's old image, and not altogother pleased at the prospect of booming

"I think this will make Kansas City grow real fast and I don't like that," said Randy Kelly, manager of Kelly's Bar, one of the city's most popular. "Kansas City is a big cow town, but it is the greatest town in the world."

SHARING THE RIVER bottom west of Kansas City's skyscrapers are warehouses and lonely boxcars the railroads seem to have forgotten. Only one thing Republican National Convention.

Hey, Elk Grove, we're here! letters to the editor

As a resident of Elk Grove Village's Winston Groves subdivision, I just want to say — HEY, WE'RE OVER HERE!! for the benefit of the Elk Grove Park District and the village

As a taxpaying member of this community, I was enraged to look at the list of summer activities offered the Elk Grove Park District for the children, only to discover that I would have to drive my children if they wished to participate because the park district did not include one activity at Adlai Stevenson School, down the block.

I was appalled at the Elk Grove Park District's maintenance of Rachel Carson Park on the day Stevenson School had its field activities there in ankle high sticker weeds and lunch among the broken glass. It was impossible to walk across the park, let alone have the kids sit down between events

"BABY" SWINGS cannot be added to the play equipment, due to lack of funds, yet the park district took over the task of moving and restoring a delapidated old house no one else wanted for a future museum. It would be interesting to know what that project will cost. And in the meantime, our children have no place to play. We're still watching the land by Stevenson School, which is also supposed to be part of the park district someday. . . maybe after the house is done.

The village board, on the other hand, refused to understand that we in this area are having water problems. As of today, we are not allowed to sprinkle, but I do not believe this will eliminate the problem since there isn't enough water to use the toilet, there certainly isn't enough to water anything outside. Is this our Bicentennial contribution, to live as the pioneers and carry water buckets? We have dirty clothes, dirty dishes, dirty kids, dead lawns, and are praying for rain: but it would help if the wells were back in operation and the new one working. There was not enough water last summer, and with more new residents in the new section, isn't it logical that we are going to have a bigger problem with two or three wells down?

It is time the village recognizes that this area will be growing for some time to come and start planning ahead to eliminate these unnecessary problems. It is the responsibility of the village to insure the health and safety of its residents and provide the children with recreational facilities now when they are needed, not when they are too old to enjoy them. Is it always necessary to ban together and fight? Isn't it time the village looks

Salary committee chair: board has shown 'disdain'

Since the party of "open government" took office in Wheeling, the wage and salary committee has been continuously subjected to closed doors, ears and minds. How can we, as employes, have respect for the village board and their positions when they don't have enough respect for us to meet face to face or even give us explanation for decisions made behind

The board's contradictions are apparent. The village board has rejected binding arbitration because it says only they can make the final decision regarding expenditure of village funds. Yet, when the wage and salary committee points out that this is the exact reason why we want to deal with the board directly, we are ignored. The village board states to the media that the employes cut off negotiations. It is ironic that this public statement was made shortly after the committee sent a letter directly to the board requesting a meeting - and never received the courtesy of a response. The board has also publicly stated that unionization is not needed because the employes have the wage and salary committee to represent them. This is ludicrous, as the board then turned around and refused to discuss representation, wages and/or fringe beneits. To add more insult to injury, the board then had the audac ity to say they would continue to have their representatives meet with us, as long as it was not to discuss these pressing issues. The employes are curious as to what else there is to dis-

AT THE FIRST session this year between the wage and salary committee and the management negotiating team, management was asked why numerous positions within the village had been eliminated from representation by the wage and salary committee. The response was that these positions were management. When it was pointed out that a village ordinance specifically stated that these positions were not management. the committee was told, "We'll change the ordinance." This arrogant, to hell with the employes attitude, has prevailed. When the board said they would assign a token trustee to sit in on a meeting, the meeting was delayed until a convenient time for the trustee could be established, even though this was not convenient for the 14 members of the wage and salary committee. Statements have been made to the press by members of the board which have been one-sided, exaggerated or false, conceivably because the board has not been enlightened about the employes' side of the issues. They cannot be enlightened unless they are willing to listen.

In prior years members of the committee met face-to-face with the village board to discuss issues which cannot be intelligently dealt with through memos or a token board representative. These sessions were occasionally heated, as seems natural when you were involved with issues that affect a man's livelihood and career. But with a minimum of delay, these meetings produced results.

More important, a mutual respect was gained for the positions taken by both sides and issues, not personalities were the focal point of discussions.

Negotiations never took place this year, because the board didn't allow them to start. For the board to have honest disagreement on issues with the employes is understandable. For the board not to live up to its responsibilities as elected officials is unforgivable. The wage and salary committee wishes the village board and the public to know that the board's inept attempt at dealing with employes has created an atmosphere of distrust and of disdain which can only be rectified by officials who are willing to live up to campaign promises of "open government."

House passes loan, minimum wage bills

The Illinois House passed bills to bring the hourly minimum wage to $2.30 and to tie home loan interest rate ceilings to the yield on long-term U.S. Government bonds.

The minimum wage bill (H3318), by Rep. Thomas Hanahan, D-McHenry, also boosts the wage for teen-agers from $1.55 per hour to $1.95. The vote was 106-50. The bill, effective July 1, would affect about 200,000 workers not covered by federal law.

The mortgage bill (H2115), sponsored by Rep. Doug Kane, D-Springfield, passed 99-41 despite complaints mortgage loan interest rates would soar and drive poor and young buyers out of the housing market. The bill sets home loan interest ceilings at 2.5 per cent over interest paid on long-term bonds.

The Senate Wednesday passed a bill which would put a 30-cent tax on every ton of coal mined in Illinois, with the money going to coal-producing counties, mine reclamation and administration. The measure passed by a 30 to 18 vote with three senators voting present. It now goes to the House,

Working woman job bias cited

Two consumer health groups charged Thursday that rather than make jobs safer, some employers discriminate against working women of child-bearing age.

The charge was made in a report issued at the opening of a three-day Conference on Women and the Workplace in Washington, D.C. It was published jointly by the Ralph Nader-affiliated Health Research Group and the University of California's Labor Occupational Health Program.

More than one million women of child-bearing age work in jobs that could expose them to chemicals that might cause birth defects and miscarriages, according to the government's National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. "As evidence mounts that substances used on the job can cause birth defects and miscacriages, employers have begun to discriminate against fertile and pregnant women workers instad of making the workplaces safer," the report

Social security change sought

President Ford asked Congress Thursday to fix "a serious flaw" in the Social Security system that makes it possible some future retirees could draw more in benefits than they earned while work-

Ford would allow yearly cost-of-living increases for those who already have retired. But his plan would freeze at 1978 levels the percentage of pre-tretirement income a retired person could draw in Social Security payments. The President also asked Congress to approve a three-tenths of 1 per cent increase in Social Security contributions by employers and workers to cut in half the existing deficit in funding for the system.

Congress resumes works fight

In February Congress fought a major veto battle with President Ford over public works jobs and lost. Now the issue is back, and Congress thinks it can win. The Senate approved a $4 billion bill sponsors claim would create up to 300,000 jobs. The 69-25 vote was six more than the two-thirds needed to override a possible veto.

Shop around for car loan, it'll pay

You're financing a new car on a three-year loan plan. You'll be borrowing $3,000. One lender offers you a deal that will oblige you to pay $630 in interest over the three years. Another offers a deal that will involve only $450 in interest. A difference of $180.

Farfetched? Not really. The everpulsating competition among lenders can result in substantial savings to borrowers who do a bit of shopping around before they sign any papers. The above example was taken from a survey of 10 major cities, conducted by the U.S. House Subcommittee on Domestic Monetary Policy. In all cities surveyed, there was a considerable difference between the high and low loan costs, with Detroit and Miami having the biggest spread for car loans. Cleveland had the biggest spread for 24-month household appliance loans and Chicago had the biggest spread for 12-month unsecured personal loans.

Loan rates will vary from time to time, from larea to area and form lender to lender. The point is that it does pay to shop.

NOTE THESE GUIDELINES in your quest for the best deal:

• The Truth in Lending Law requires that all finance costs be expressed as the annual percentage rate (APR). This equalizes all quotes for loans of the same duration. When you're given the quote, be sure that you understand how long the loan is to run. For example: one lender may quote you 11.96 APR for a three-year car loan. Another may quote you 10.85 APR, without stating that that's for a four-year loan. The rate is lower, sure, but you'll be paying for one year longer, thus a lot more total interest expense. Watch out for the lure.

· Life and disability insurance can add appreciably to your over-all cost. These are forms of insurance sold by the lender to protect both the borrower and the lender, with the borrower paying for it. If the borrower dies, any remaining balance on the loan is paid off by the life insurance. If the borrower is disabled, his loan payments are made for him by the disability insurance. Generally, the amount of the premium for these insurances is added to the amount you borrow, so that you end up paying interest on the premium as well as on

THESE FORMS OF insurance can vary widely, as can their costs. If you do want to have this coverage, be sure that you understand what you're getting for your money. And in comparing over-all quotes from lenders, you should determine how much insurance, if any, if included in the quote. • Often, the terms of the loan can affect the rate. Thus you might get a more favorable loan rate by making a larger down payment, by taking a shorter loan or by including more collateral along with your signature. Ask about these factors when you shop.

• What about dealer financing? It can be convenient and also more costly. I personally favor dealing directly with your local banker, not just for price but also because the personal relationship can be valuable in other

 In shopping for auto financing, don't overlook your auto insurance company. They may offer competitive rates. DOW JONES AVERAGE

Heavy trading puts Dow over 1,000

NEW YORK (UPI - The Dow Jones industrial average smashed through the 1,000 level Thursday for the seventh time this year in the heaviest trading in three months on the New York Stock Exchange.

In a raily sparked by strong economic reports, the closely-watched Dow average, a 2.70-point winner Wednesday, soared 1457 points to 1,003.19, the best level since it closed at 1,005.67 May 12. It was the biggest gain in the Dow since it climbed 15.35 points April 20. In the six previous moves through the 1,000 level this year, the Dow ran into profit-taking pressures that drove it back.

The average reached a 1976 high of 1,011.02 April 22. Its all-time high of 1,051.70 was reached Jan. 11, 1973. A number of analysts have predicted it would top that mark this year and reach upwards of $1,100 or 1,200.

THE VOLUME of 27,810,000 shares, up from the 21,620,000 traded Wednesday, was the heaviest turnover since 32,605,470 shares changed hands March 24 and brought joy to Wall Street brokerages, which have suffered through three months of stagnant trading.

Other averages showed the breadth of the rally. Standard & Poor's 500stock index rose 1.60 to 103.61, a new 1976 high; the NYSE common stock index 081 to 55.17 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 50 cents.

Advances routed declines, 1,133 to 364, among the 1,846 issues crossing

Sparking the surge were government reports showing production climbed 0.7 per cent in May,the 14th consecutive monthly gain; housing starts rose 0.2 per cent, and personal income jumped 0 8 per cent. Also, retail sales rose 2 per cent last week.

AN AFTERNOON burst was sparked by the Federal Reserve Board, which took steps to drive down federal fund rates banks charge one another for overnight loans. The step again indicated the Fed is not tightening credit as it did in the past three months.

American Telephone & Telegraph topped the Big Board actives, climbing 1-1/8 to 56 on 758,700 shares, including a block of 172,200 shares at 561/4. A 12-million-share offering of AT&T stock was oversubscribed, showing a strong institutional interest in the most widely-held blue-chip stock in the nation.

TWA was the second most active issue, up 1/4 to 13 on 361,000 shares, mcluding a block of 178,600 shares at 12-7/8. The stock lost most of an earlier gain. The firm reported a $122 million profit in May, compared with a

ROCKWELL SAID, "The old finger plan seems to be working well except in one area, the development of regional shopping centers. We have found there is still a tendency to build (shopping centers) in cornfields where the land is cheap."

Rockwell said the finger plan is being retained in a newly updated version of the NIPC plan approved Thursday by the 25 member commission, but that the reference to 10-minute driving time has been dropped.

The plan update, he said, also emphasizes that local communities should consider the costs of providing roads and other services to regional shopping centers before allowing them to be built far from existing ser-

Rockwell, McClure and Constance Zimmerman, chairman of the commission's planning committee, said Thursday the updated plan will be used when the commission reviews proposals for use of federal funds in the six-county metropolitan area.

NIPC makes recommendations to the federal government on various grant programs using its planning studies for the region.

OTHER CHANGES in the plan include an increased emphasis on the need for equal opportunity in housing, Rockwell said.

In addition, the new plan categorizes a number of suburbs, such as Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg, as "newly urbanized areas" rather than as "development areas."

areas will have to concentrate on problems of housing for workers and water and sewer problems of densely populated areas in the future, rather than on the problems of controlling

McClure said the updated plan also has been changed to reflect NIPC's realization since 1968 that local governments and not the commission will make final planning decisions. He said, "We all recognize that we are advisory only, but what has come out of this is the awareness of public officials that planning involves regional and not just local concern."

Rockwell said the original 1968 plan cost $140,000 to develop and the update cost NIPC about $35,000 in staff time over a three-year period.

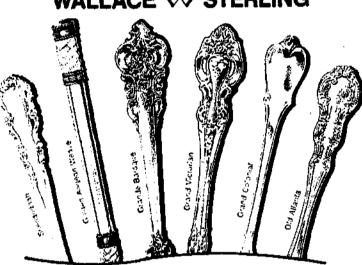

MAP shows the development patterns recommended for the Chicago suburbs by the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission. The "finger plan" endorsed in a revised plan adopted by NIPC Thursday, calls for development along the area's commuter railroads, including the Chicago and North Western Ry.

Community band in Palatine

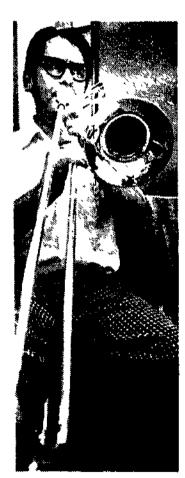

Going strong 100 years later

by BONITA BRODT

One hundred years ago members of the first Palatine band wore dark, navy blue military uniforms with matching caps. The band was small in those days, only about 15 regulars. Yet, those few men ignited an enthusiasm for community music in Palatine that continues today.

Now called the Palatine Concert Band, the group includes 40-60 year-round musicians. Members practice once a week at Palatine High School for three winter concerts and a summer series of free. Friday night performances which begin tonight, 8 o'clock, in Palatine Community Park.

In the century since the Palatine band originated, several changes have taken place. Women were allowed to join for the first time in 1958, when the group was revived after disbanding during the Depression. The name has changed several times. Originally called the Palatine Military Band, it was renamed Palatine Northwest Community Band in 1958, and then in the '60s it was again changed to Palatine Village Band.

RALPH SCHROEDER (above) has played with the Palatine Concert Band for 19 years. His father, Henry Schroeder, was also a member. He appears (third from right, last row) in the picture of the band taken in 1912 when it was called the Palatine Military Band. Other former members include Ben Blume (first from right, last row), Dan Bergman and Adolph Kuntze (third and second from right, center row).

TODAY'S CONCERT BAND is composed of volunteer adult musicians — and occasionally a youngster or two — who simply enjoy playing an instrument. You don't have to be a superb musician to join — some members have even learned to play an instrument while practicing with the band.

At present, members represent 16 suburban communities. Some have made music their profession and appreciate the extra practice time the band offers; others consider the Tuesday evening practice session a good opportunity to brush up on a retired high school music career and socialize.

In the summer, the Palatine Concert Band no longer marches in parades. Instead, members comfortably ride in an old, converted school bus as they play their music. That's progress.

There are a few men around, however, who remember Palatine's marching band days.

Ninety-four-year-old Dan Bergman, who still farms with his son in Palatine, is the oldest veteran of the Palatine Military Band. He was a member for about 10 years and played a cornet, he said.

"SOMETIMES WE WOULD go to Crystal Lake and even to Glencoe to march in the parades. We were pretty good, too. I remember one time, we didn't really have enough people to march in a parade but, somehow, we gathered up enough members and won the $100 first prize," he said. "Then after that parade, we gave $50 to the high school band and used the other half to take ourselves out to dinner that night," he recalled laughingly.

In the winter months, Bergman said, the military band was not as active. "We would always enjoy going to town on Tuesday evenings. We would go to practice, but we always ended up at Schoppe's store to sit around the stove and talk," he said.

THE YOUNGEST MEMBER of the military band, Adolph Kuntze, was a cornet player still wearing knickers. Today, at age 76, he has long grown out of his knee pants. He currently resides in Amarillo, Tex., though he remembers well his days with the band.

"Whenever the stores were open at night, we would play on a band-stand on the corner of Brockway and Slade Streets in the village. On New Year's Eve, we would always play at a dance — and made enough money to pay our director," he said in a phone interview.

Another old-timer, Ben Blume, is now 80 and lives in Harrison, Ark. His best recollections of military band days were the hot, summer afternoons when bandsmen would wear their hot, military uniforms and march through village streets.

Ralph Schroeder, a trombone player with today's band, has been an active member for 19 years, which is longer than any other member. His father, Henry, was also a trombone player in the band and Ralph's son played before he moved from the area.

TO ADD A sentimental flavor to performances, Palatine band directors often sift through the brittle and yellowed band music played by their predecessors. And for Ralph Schroeder, it once brought a special memory.

"One day, they were passing out some of the older songs. I looked down at the music on my stand and there was my father's name written on the top of the sheet in his own handwriting. It was just like I was sitting there, playing along with him," he said.

Schroeder was one of the men who helped the band along as it was reactivated in the '50s. "Adolph Kuntze called me one day and said they were trying to get enough members together so we could march in the Centennial parade. He wanted me to take my father's place. I couldn't play my trombone too well — hadn't practiced much since high school — but I joined," he said.

"IN THOSE DAYS, just after the band was started up again, we used to have to run around like crazy men, performing at every place we could to get enough money to pay our director," Schroeder said.

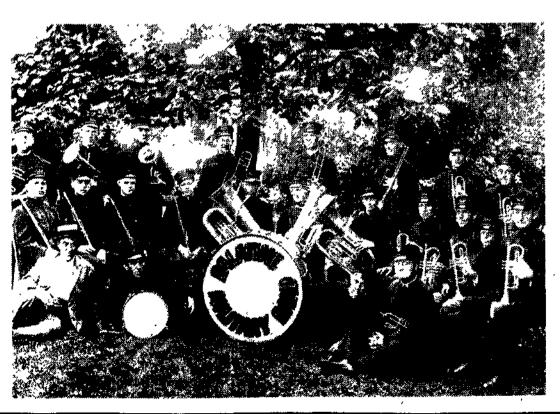

The band at that time was unable to afford uniforms until about $200 was donated to it Schroeder said. Then they purchased uniforms: band trousers, white shirts, red suspenders, black string neckties and caps copied after the earlier military uniforms. Schroeder keeps his outfit intact hanging in his closet.

During the winter season, the concert band members wear black and white clothes of their own choice. In the summer, they simply wear street clothes. The band is funded by both the Village of Palatine and the Palatine Park District. That money helps pay directors. Arthur Katterjohn directs during the winter season and spends the summers teaching music. Stan Louiseau, the summer director, is a regular band member during the winter.

MEMBERS IN TODAY'S Palatine Concert Band are music enthusiasts, to say the least. At Tuesday night rehearsals, the mixture of young and old musicians tap their toes madly to the sometimes very difficult selections. Louiseau will stop rehearsal several times as he and the members strive for their own kind of musical perfection.

"This band is composed of players of several different strengths," said Louiseau. "We play some really difficult music, and sometimes I'm surprised at just how good it sounds. I guess there is that temptation to hand out easier music in the summer when we have to rely on sight reading, but that's not the right thing for this band. These are ambitious people who are ready to tackle most any piece of music, no matter how difficult."

The public is invited to attend rehearsals every Tuesday, 8-10 p.m., at Palatine High School, 150 Wood St. Persons having participated at three rehearsals are then eligible to join the Palatine Concert Band.

Ravina fever hits music fans every summer

by LOIS HENDERLONG

The Ravinia bug — it's kind of like spring fever. Once you've got it, you don't want to get rid of it.

In fact, for many the contagion gets stronger each year — because no matter what your craving, be it Bach, ballet or Benny Goodman, the Ravinia Festival in Highland Park dishes it out with style.

And if your penchant happens to be for something a little more off the beaten track — some Poulenc songs, maybe, or an offbeat contemporary drama — that can be found, too, in the woodsy Midsummer Night's Dream-like setting of the 36-acre park. The question isn't "What's Ravinia got?"; it's "What hasn't it got?"

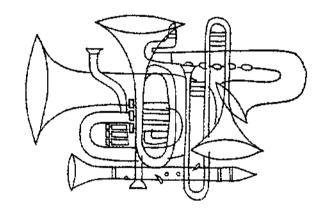

Rock and hard jazz fans might argue that there's precious little for them, and there's some truth in what they say. Those who seek vintage Miles Davis or a wild night with Alice Cooper had best be off in search of other haunts; security problems have led the Ravinia administration to steer clear of entertainment that might attract a rowdy audience. But there's good folk music to be had, some soft pop and the best of the classic jazz performers, in addition to chamber and full orchestra concerts, plays and dance.

There was a time when Ravinia fever meant Opera, definitely with a capital O. Those who remember that time, the era of the Roaring '20s and of great voices like Chaliapin, get nostalgic at the recollection of years when a 35-opera season seemed the most natural of things. There was Verdi and Puccini galore, plus Wagner, Massenet and enough unusual bonbons to give the season more variety than you'll be able to find in any company's schedule nowadays.

TIMES, AND perhaps tastes, have changed since then, but opera is not yet extinct at Ravinia. Gone are the trappings. What was in the pre-Depression era a lavish spectacle is now a slimmed down version given by the in-residence Chicago Symphony. Concert operas are easier to put on; no staging, no costumes, no sets to worry about, only voices to contend with. Of course, there's nothing to camouflage those voices, either, so what a voice it takes to stand up to that test!

Who better for the challenge than today's best-known soprano, Beverly Sills? In the past few years she's been paired with Ravinia Musical Director James Levine for concert versions of Bellini's "Norma" and some youthful Mozart operas. Instead, this time around she's doing operatic selections with Sarah Caldwell, Boston opera's shining light, in the conductor's spot.

Most often, though, the podium belongs to 33-year-old James Levine, entering his fourth season as musical director as the Festival enters its 41st year. If critics were skeptical when he was ushered in at the tender age of 29 — virtuoso babes-in-arms all too often are still having growing pains — they've since reneged. Meanwhile, apparently oblivious to anyone's doubts, Levine has continued confidently ahead, sure of his judgment and willing to try out new things.

SINCE HIS arrival the Festival has innovated one-composer programs, from audience-pleasers like Schubert and Tchaikovsky to real audience challenges like Schoenberg. Berg, Schuller, Cage and other contemporary free spirits also appear on the roster occasionally. And, at least so far, Levine's inclinations have seldom turned out to be miscalculations.

This year the one-composer events offer those comfortable standbys, Bach, Beethoven and Mozart, as well as an evening of Prokofieff.

Levine will open the season Thursday with a resounding roar, conducting the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony Chorus, as well as vocal soloists Carol Neblett, Beverly Wolff, Nico Castel, Robert Nagy Ragnar Ulfung and Arnold Voketaitis, in the first area performance of Schoenberg's massive "Churco Lieder".

Like every other arts organization, business firm, race track, gas station and hotdog haven, Ravinia is celebrating the Bicentennial. The music Levine has chosen for his All-American program is straight-forward, fresh and invigorating — more than can be said about many of the celebration offerings. Charles Ives' metaphysical muse, "The Unanswered Question," Leonard Bernsteins' "Overture to Candide," Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring" and the Piano Concerto by Samuel Barber make up the concert. There will also be an all-Gershwin night and a program devoted to Scott Joplin rags.

ON THE POP-JAZZ side, the lineup could well be called All-American, quality-wise. Returning to Ravinia, where he plays nearly annually, is Benny Goodman with his sextet. The rest of the season will include Ella Fitzgerald, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie, Harry Chapin, Ferrante and Teicher, Judy Collins, The Lettermen, Barry Manilow, Linda Ronstadt, Kris Kristofferson with Rita Collidge, and Neil Sedaka.

Ticket orders flooded in for Barry Manilow, so in addition to his originally scheduled Aug. 6 performance, he will give a concert Aug. 9, with tickets on sale starting at 10 a.m. Sunday at Ravinia's Highland Park office.

The City Center's Joffrey Ballet will take up residence at the park Aug. 17-22, bringing back such past season favorites as Gerald Arpino's "Confetti," Twyla Tharp's "Deuce Coupe II" and Anthony Tudor's "Offenbach in the Underworld," as well as new pieces choreographed by Arpino, Alvin Ailey, Jerome Robbins, John Cranko and Kurt Joos. Also scheduled is the Bella Lewitzky Dance Company Aug. 1 and 2.

FOR THREE WEEKS the youthful but well-disciplined Acting Company, under direction of John Houseman, will be offering what promises to be true ensemble acting in William Congreve's Resto-

TV's 'Kotter' theme song makes hit on new album

The television theme song has been the surprise source of several hits so far this year and John Sebastian's theme for "Welcome Back, Kotter" is the best of the lot.

Although it took awhile, that theme is now available in an album, "Welcome Back" (Reprise records), that is Sebastian's best since 1969's "John B. Sebastian."

There is an inviting warmth throughout the album and, of course, the barely restrained joy of the title song. Sebastian's mirth also surfaces "One Step Forward, Two Steps Back." a funky, shuffling dance takeoff.

OTHER GOOD songs are the soft ballad "She's Funny," the bluesy "Warm Baby" and the not-quite-asbluesy "I Needed Her Most When I Told Her To Go." Sebastian has several good harp solos, including one on the instrumental "Let This Be Our Time To Get Along." "You Go Your Way and I'll Go Mine" is an casygoing rocker about breaking up.

The former Lovin' Spoonful member also does one country song, "A Song a Day in Nashville."

Two factors contribute greatly to the album's success. They are Steve Barri's co-production and Sebastian's improved songwriting. Welcome back, indeed.

Ian Anderson, creative genius behind Jethro Tull, likes concept albums. The group's act is built around them. So it is no surprise, with a tour expected soon, that the new album, "Too Old To Rock 'N' Roll: Too Young To Die" (Chrysalis), is a concept album.

It appears a more mature work than some of the earlier concepts, with more emphasis on a soft, acoustic sound. It tells the story of Ray Lomas, an old rocker who refuses to change with the times. He becomes a quiz show contestant, meets a woman and gets stood up, has a motorcycle accident and when he recovers finds out he is suddently back in style.

THE UPTEMPO, harmonica-drive "Taxi Grab" and the title song are the two standouts, but also good are "Quizz Kld," "The Chequered Flag" and the slow, bluesy and melancholy "From a Dead Beat To an Old Grea-

Special bonuses are printed lyrics and a comic strip version of the story, which should be R-rated. Jethro Tull will appear at the Chicago Stadium

Other new releases include:

• "Cry Tough" by Nils Lofgren (A&M). There's no question that Lofgren is one of rock's better guitarists, with a superb fluid style. Unfortunately, too often on this record the technique seems to be of no purpose. The album suffers from week writing, with the title song the exception. For a rock album by someone noted for his "street image." there's not enough grit. The blurring of Lofgren's vocals becomes annoying, too. · "Faithful" by Todd Rundgren

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

(Bearsville). Side one is Todd and three-fifths of Utopia having a ball trying to be the Yardbirds, Beach Boys, Beatles, Bob Dylan and Jimi Hendrix. They are best as the Beatles. As to whether we need it, that depends on your mood. It can be taken as a lot of fun.

Side two features Rundgren originals but, except for "The Verb 'To Love'," which itself is too long, the songs are forgettable. "When I Pray" takes its inspiration from the familiar child's prayer and "Boogies (Hamburger Hell)" contains the recipe for a Big Mac.

"Close Enough For Rock 'N' Roll" by Nazareth (A&M). The Scottish quartet's seventh album (if I haven't lost count) is disappointing, especially since the group is just starting to become a superstar. Much of the album is written around life on the road, a common theme for the band. The four-part "Telegram" picks up only at the end with the far too brief "Here We Are Again."

The album's best effort is "Carry Out Feeling" with its good lyric irony and very melodic vocals. It is the screechers that disappoint this time

Soundings:

LINDA RONSTADT, EM-MYLOU HARRIS and DOLLY PARTON, three of country's best singers, have taped a performance for Parton's new "Dolly" show which premieres in September.

PETER FONDA sings and acts in the film "Outlaw Blues." There will be a soundtrack album . . . PAUL WILLIAMS is adding "Bugsy Malone" to his film score credits and has been working with KENNY ASHER on a Broadway musical called "Dorothy."

Albums in the works: "Moving Target" by FLO & EDDIE: BONNIE KOLOC'S first for Columbia; LOU CHRISTIE for Epic, produced by CHARLIE CALELLO who worked with him on "Lightning Strikes"; and a solo "Just You and Me" by HERB ALPERT.

In the area: IKE & TINA TURNER Review, two shows each tonight and Saturday, Sportsman's Park, Cicero: STEVE MILLER, Saturday, Uptown Theater, Chicago.

Biographer portrays Adlai as man of high principles

"ADLAI STEVENSON OF ILLINOIS." by JOHN BARTLOW MARTON. (Doubleday, $15)

Adlal Stevenson has been dead more than 10 years now and the current presidential candidates only emphasize what he brought to the political scene.

Wit and humor. Style with a hole in his shoe. And eloquence of a kind that now seems to have been born in a better, more civilized century.

Stevenson was a politician at home in a library, but he also was a highly likable human being - despite his unprepossessing looks, particularly so to women, from Eleanor Roosevelt to Joan Fontaine.

This excellent biography takes Stevenson from his privileged childhood to his defeat in the 1952 presidential election. A second book is planned on his later years.

The emphasis is on his public years as governor of Illinois and his bid for the presidency. Some of the details of his divorce put the matter in better perspective than did the jumbled accounts of the time - and time itself has changed attitudes on divorce itself. THE 1952 CAMPAIGN provides the book's centerplece. A relatively obscure governor, a latecomer to politics but highly effective in office, he quickly became a vital part of the national consciousness, inspiring his followers to believe he presented many of the best American virtues.

Martin, a skilled magazine writer who obviously relished his subject and talked to everybody who would answer, asks, "What made his campaign so gloriously memorable to his followers?" In part, the author an-

"His self-deprecation . . . was a becoming humility to his devotees. His

His appeal to the intellect, his eloquence, his elevation of the level of political. discourse captured the imaginations academic people and other intellectuals who remained his devoted followers, and the admiration of millions of les-educated people."

THEY SAID of Stevenson's presidential campaigns that he raised the standard of American political life. To read Martin's book will make many wonder if it wasn't Stevenson's, and America's tragedy that he was a man before his time. In this election year, no Adlai Stevenson appears on the horizon to elevate the level of American politics.

Satan's son returns in 'The Omen'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

(A review) Flat off - "The Omen" is only for that segment of the movie-going population who felt "The Exorcist" had certain redeeming factors. I happened to have been one of them.

Until exaggerated publicity and overzealous fans ruined its appeal for legitimate movie buffs. "The Exorcist" fit the bill of a creative and technically well-made thriller. In emotional response, anyhow, it scored high Even so. I for one wasn't afraid Satan was ready to Inhabit my soul.

Filling in the gap until "Exorcist II" is ready to be released, "The Omen" combines acceptable acting and direction with a few devilish gimmicks to offer the public yet another scare for its money.

More a hyped-up "Rosemary's Baby" than anything else, the devil's child is planted in an American career diplomat's home where he will have the best chance to grow up pampered, schooled and successful, making it then easier for him to take over the world.

"The Omen" is devoid of the special effects that charged up "The Exorcist," but for chills and thrills there is plenty to watch - gravestone robbing, suicidal hanging and a bloody decapitation They all lead up to the grand linale: Mrs. Thorn's swan dive from a hospital room at least 10 stories up through the roof of an ambulance. But here's the topper. She lands right on the stretcher

I WON'T GIVE away any more secrets to the movie, but if the "Exorcist" kept you awake even two nights in a row and you honestly believe the Devil is on his way - don't unnecessarily worry yourself. Just stay home There are many other shows to consider.

However, neither rain, nor sleet, nor - well, snow in July? - shall ever stop the show from going on. So if you are counting on hearing a concert, it could be better to buy a pavilion seat ahead of time. Reservations are not accepted Saturday nights (they are other nights), and on a recent visit we waited an hour and a half for a table. Other patrons did the same and by 8 p.m. the large bar was filled. Fortunately. owners had enough foresight to include a cheese table in the bar with enough spreads and crackers to quiet growling stomachs.

Atmosphere at The Prime Minister - despite the pretentious name - is informal. Service, however, is far from casual. The night we visited it was excellent.

FOR APPETIZERS we selected the French-baked onion soup, $1.75, and the shrimp de jonghe, $2.60. Both were delicious. The soup comes in a large crock with plenty of cheese. The shrimp was a good-sized portion with plenty of garlic to make it really "de jonghe." Other appetizers on the menu include shrimp scampi, crab legs, snails bourgogne and saganaki.

Each entree includes soup of the day or tomato juice, a salad and choice of potato. The homemade vegetable soup was tasty. The salad was a mixture of crisp greens and little else. However, the waitress leaves the salad bowl and dressings on the table for second helpings.

We sampled the king-size prime rib. $7.95, the peppered tenderioin steak, $8.50, the filet mignon, $8.50, and the dover sole, $7.50. Other entrees include roast duck, lamb chops, pork chops, broiled chicken, baby back ribs, wiener schnitzel and a variety of seafood including a large portion of the shrimp de jonghe.

THE PRIME RIB was a generous portion with good flavor although slightly more done than the medium rare ordered. The filet was also tasty

Ballet costumes now on exhibit

A special exhibit of American Ballet Theatre's costume and scenic designs are now on display at Lincoln Center's Library and Museum for the Performing Arts in New York City.

The exhibition, "American Ballet Theatre - 36 Years of Scenic and Costume Design 1940-1976," spans the entire performance history of the company and includes commissioned designs by such artists as Marc Chagall, Boris Aronson, Jo Mielziner, Oliver Smith. Irene Sharaff and Marcel Vertes, as well as classical works by Alexandre Benois, Leon Bakst and Pa-and large The peppered tenderloin was especially delicious served with crisp vegetables, large pieces of mushroom and wild rice. The dover sole in almondine sauce also received the stamp of approval.

Desserts include cheese cake, freshbaked pies and chocolate mousse, 95 We selected the mousse which was rich enough for two and resembled a tasty chocolate pudding more than a light mousse.

The Prime Minister, which also serves lunch, has been open nine months and word has obviously gotten around At 10.30 pm. the lobby was still crowded with waiting diners.

Sometimes animals suffer

Gruesome movies are becoming common. And ordinarily I can take all the blood and guts in stride. That is, if only humans are being killed off. Deep down I know even the most realistic looking torture scenes are achieved with trick photography, trained stunt men or any other number of technical secrets of the trade.

But when an animal gets hurt I want to cry. There is no way of knowing for sure whethe or not that animal was actually sacrificed.

The American Humane Association tries to prevent the mistreatment of animals in filming. Yet there are no laws it can enforce. All it can do is publicize those movies that are unacceptable.

ONE RECENTLY released is "Missouri Breaks," a United Artists film with Marion Brando and Jack Nicholson. Even before it was out, the movie received heavy criticism when the leading horse was drowned in a rivercrossing scene.

"There are a number of other reasons why this film is unacceptable," charges Joseph Hilpert, director of AHA's western regional office. Most criticisms center on gross mistreatment of horses during filming, but in one particular scene an animal is killed on full camera."

Hilpert describes the death scene: "While on horseback, Marlon Brando chases a rabbit, finally impaling it with a peculiar weapon that looks like a four-pronged tire-iron sharpened on each end. He throws it like a boomerang. The iron penetrates the rabbit's back, blood spurts and the rabbit squeals. All this - including the opening of the rabbit's mouth for the squeal — is shown."

"THE DUCHESS and the Dirtwater Fox" worried me at first, George Segal's horse, Black Jack, is one of the stars of the show but several times he takes some rather nasty falls. But it only looks that way. Actually Black Jack is a horse very much in demand. He's been trained how to fall without hurting himself.

Why don't producers use more trained animals in filming? For one thing, there are not enough of them to horse feed. Unfortunately it is easier and cheaper to buy an old nag and not have to worry over its final fate.

MARTIN MILNER, MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN and SYLVIA SYDNEY will star in Samuel Taylor's romantic comedy, "SABRINA FAIR," at AR-LINGTON PARK THEATRE beginning next Friday and continuing through July 18.

Other plays booked at Arlington include "THE SUNSHINE BOYS," to star PHIL SILVERS, July 23-Aug. 15; and WILLIAM CONRAD in "THAT come high. They get more than just CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON" Aug. 20-Sept. 12.

> VINCE VIVERIFO has been named the new producer at PAOLELLA'S RUSTIC BARN DINNER THEATRE in Bloomingdale.

> Viverito has been active locally in community theater. Recently he appeared in "My Daughter's Rated X" at Country Club Comedy Theatre.

> Beginning next Friday "A GEN-TLEMAN AND A SCOUNDREL," a comedy by Elk Grove playwright Jack Sharkey, will be featured at the Rustic Barn.

Local ballet talent is promising for Chicago

by LYNN ASINOF (A review)

There is just enough local talent in the Lyric Opera of Chicago Ballet performance this week to give it a homegrown flavor.

True, the majority of the 30 dancers are imported from the New York City Ballet and include such stellar names as Suzanne Farrell, Jacques d'Amboise and Christine Recpath.

Bu' about a dozen of the dancers, including two soloists, are Chicago trained. And that is more local dance talent than the Windy City has seen in a long time.

The performance Wednesday night gave Chicago a rare look at the choreography and technique that have made George Balanchine and his NYCB giants in the dance world. His full company does not travel to Chicago and his dancers rarely make guest appearances in the area.

THE TIES BETWEEN the Lyric troupe and Balanchine are obvious. Maria Tallchief, director of the ballet and school is a former ballerina with the NYCA and Balanchine's former wife

For the past two years, Tailchief has been training dancers, slowly developing the makings of a local company The performance Wednesday showed that the troupe is not quite ready to stand on its own but holds promise.

though she lacked the steely edge of a polished dancer, Alexopoulos has the flow of movement needed to make a Balanchine ballet work.

THE PIECE, set to a Bach double violin concerto, weaves an intricate visual line through the point and counter-point of the music. Alexopoulos has a lovely extension and soft expression that give a gentleness to her performance.

Cheese does affect lactose intolerant

I am 46. For the past 10 years I have been troubled with nausea, gas and spasm of the stomach. During this period it cost me plenty for specialists, tests and prescriptions. All tests proved negative. I have stopped coffee and eigarettes, but to no avail. I was going crazy for an answer. Every night while watching TV my wife would bring me a saucer of cheese. I love cheese of every commercial kind. An elderly relative told me to stop eating cheese. He claimed that it irritates the stomach lining. That was six months ago. Now I feel terrific. How about a rundown on cheese and its effects. I would think there are thousands of readers who have the same problem with their stomachs.

The probability is that you have intolerance to lactose, milk sugar. Your letter prompts me to emphasize that one of those milk products is cheese. Commercial cheeses contain large amounts of lactose. Individuals who cannot break down the double sugar cannot absorb it and it acts like a chemical laxative. It produses exactly the same kind of symptoms you have described. You can probably tell if this is true or not by your reaction to other milk products.

About two-thirds of the people who have lactose intolerance can't utilize even one glass of milk without having at least minor symptoms. The usual tests of the digestive system, including X rays, will show nothing at all that the doctor can use to make a diagnosis. There are chemical tests which are done to identify people with this problem, but thielr use is not yet that widespread.

The best method of determining whether or not a person has this problem is to eliminate all milk and milk products, including cheese, just as you have done. If the symptoms disappear the problem is usually lactose intolerance.

The dairy industry could use Lact-Aid to form low lactose milk and market cheese, yogurt and products from this milk. The practice of adding dry milk solids to thicken yogurt makes it high in

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 7-2, Milk Products: Good and Bad, to give you a more complete understanding of this problem. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

Some time ago you said to protect the face from crow's feet and facial wrinkling, do not smoke. I had always thought this was an old wives' tale. Is there medical evidence for this? I have several friends who would probably stop smoking if this were true.

I wouldn't have said it if it were not so. A study has been made of grading the facial changes in people without knowing which ones smoked or how much. These were then compared to their smoking habits. The results show that cigaret smokers, particularly the heavy smokers, tend to have faces that appeared 10 years older nan non-smokers. Crow's feet wrinkles were especially apt to be deep and prominent in heavy smokers. So, tell your friends if they want to avoid facial wrinkles that make them appear older, they should stop smoking. Incidentally, the study was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association in recent times. It is quite white sweater stain Dear Dorothy: Accidentally scorced the elbow of a lovely white

acrylic sweater. Have tried spot removers and other solutions on the spot with no luck. Any suggestions? - Ann Lombardi

Since it's acrylic and not wool you ought to try direct sunlight for a starter - either as is, or soaking the spot in warm water, and applying lemon juice and sait. Sun has amazing powers on stains. Handling it indoors, a paste of starch and water dabbed on and left to dry works on some stains. When brushed, the scorch often comes right out. Another way is to dampen the spot with peroxide, put a white cloth over it, and press with a warm iron until the moisture is absorbed. This sometime takes several applications. Try the sun

Dear Dorothy: My daughter keeps a bowl of unshelled nuts on a coffee table, says they stay fresh indefinitely. I always thought nuts had to be stored in refrigerator or freezer if not eaten in reasonably short order. - Mrs. Hazel May Nuts do all right at room temperature for as long as six months. Longer than that, yes, they should get cold storage.

Dear Dorothy: Got a lovely caladium for Mother's Day. How bestto take care of it? - Lucinda Browning

This is one plant that should never be put in direct sunlight and the soil should be kept moist. However, never overwater. Caladiums rot easily.

Dear Dorothy: I find that the best way to tell whether whites are properly beaten is to carefully turn the bowl upide down. If the whites do not start to slide out, they're done. — Maryann Towey lawed as an intoxicating beverage, its future was bright.

In the early 1600s coffee moved from Arabia into Europe and became an instant hit. Coffee houses sprang up as places where people could meet and enjoy relaxed companionship. At last, coffee was accepted as a drink that could be enjoyed by everyone. The idea that it was a drink brewed by the devil was buried.

Nowadays people can enjoy coffee in many forms. Regular ground coffee is the result of a mixture of coffee beans that have been blended and mixed to produce a coffee with a particular flavor. In addition to the drink there are numerous instant coffees.

Freeze-dried coffee is an instant coffee that is prepared by first making freshly brewed coffee. The liquid coffee undergoes processes whereby most of the liquid portion is removed, and the remaining residues are frozen into solid slabs. These slabs are ground into chunks and passed into special pressurized chambers. The remaining moisture is drawn off in the form of ice crystals, leaving behind the dry coffee crystals that need only hot water to produce a cup of coffee.

The United States ranks as the largest coffeeconsuming country in the world. Each year we use about 2,775,000,000 pounds of coffee. Oddly enough, a little more than 200 years ago, tea, not coffee, lead to a conflict that gave our country its independence

Lioness' life not as kingly as mate's

by JOAN HANAUER

The African iion is a male chauvinist cat.

That's the view of leonine life on the Serengeti as portrayed on "Jane all and the World of Animal Behavior" in the last of the ABC series, to be aired from 6 to 7 p.m. Sunday.

"Lions of the Serengeti," filmed over a period of several months on the East African plain, focuses on a small pride -- two males, four females and 16 cubs.

The fact that zoologist Goodall now is divorced from Hugo van Lawich. producer, director and photographer for the program, may have influenced the show's attitude, but the female iion comes out strongly as leading a dog's life, to mix an animal meta-

"The males are more transitory than the females in their relationships," was the way the narrative treated the male lion's fickle nature. The males sleep up to 20 hours a day, while the females hunt. Then the males come along and appropriate the kiil.

THE LIONS are territorial, and the males mark their area with a glandular secretion - nature's no trespassing sign.

The lion may be king of the beasts, but even a monarch has a tough time when the dry season comes to the Serengeti. Days go by without a kill and even the most tender-hearted viewer could start rooting for the lions to land a prey.

The females are far better hunters than the males, but even they have their problems. Lions are capable of keeping up with their prey only in short spurts. If the kill isn't quick, the speedier victim may well escape.

Once the kill is made, the lions can't always hold onto it. Males of their own pride may steal the food, or other predators - even a large pack of hyenas - can steal the meal of a

Plants have been grown through the centuries both for decorative purposes and, more importantly, to keep man in touch with his true environment. The world of indoor houseplants is large and varied. There are thousands of plants that are collected from all parts of the world and studied for their characteristics and their adaptability to both the greenhouse or the

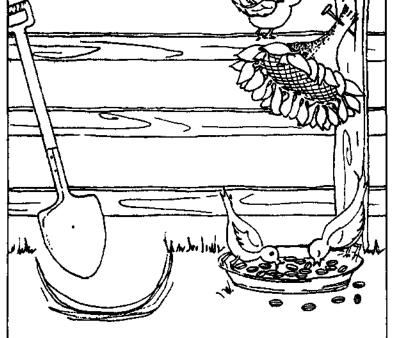

Not all plants are well suited for homes. Many are fussy regarding the way they are watered, the amount of light they receive, or the lack of humidity in the air. These are the plants that I will not talk about except to warn you abtut them.

There are a few hundred good, solid plants around that even the most novice of indoor gardeners can grow with a little bit of care. It is mainly the novice gardeners I am concerned with, first off, because it was not such a long time ago that I was a novice myself, and secondly because I feel the hardest phase of indoor gardening is just getting started.

If you have a little patience, can take a little bit of time, and do not take it too hard if you lose a few plants in the beginning - you are on your way. No longer will you have to travel to see the world: now you have found a way to bring a bit of the continents into your own living room.

For the romantics you can have Aglaomemas, or commonly called the "Chinese Evergreens" which come from such exotic places as the Philippines, Malaya, Ceylon, Java. Thailand, Perak and Celebes. For the adventurer there is the Agaves, which is collected from the remove hills and sunny valleys of places like the Mediterranean, Mexico, the West Indies, Yucatan and Pachuca. Whether a reel mower or a rotary is used, it should be kept sharp. Reel mowers are more apt to stay sharp all season because they cut by positive shearing action.

Rotary mowers should be sharpened every four hours of running time. If inspection of cut leaves shows the grass is being torn instead of cut, sharpen the mower sooner.

Mowers, particularly rotaries are inherently dangerous. Keep them well sharpened and run them only fast enough to do the job warns Schuster.

Flowers for shady areas

Most annual flowers produce less color when grown in shade. Some species tolerate shade, but become tall and flower poorly.

According to James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois Extension Horticulturist in Cook County, fibrous-rooted or wax begonia, which does well in tull sun, is also one of the best annual flowers for shady areas.

The new F-1 hybrids have exceptional vigor and bloom continually throughout the growing season. You can expect color right up until a killing frost in the fall, says Fizzell. The plants are extremely tolerant of wind and rain. Unlike the petunia, which shows the effects of a rain storm for a few days, the new fibrous-rooted begonias will bounce back in a matter of

There is a good selection of varieties. Available are those that produce green or bronze foliage. Flower colors range from white through yellow-green to pink and deep red. Leaf and flower size also vary, some varieties producing large blooms and fohage and others with small flowers and leaves.

Coleus is another good species for shaded as well as bright areas. This plant is known primarily for its fohage. Many new introductions in recent years have established it as one of the better plants for shaded areas. according to Fizzell. The follage is quite striking and can be used to add contrast to flower borders.

Impatiens, a shade loving garden flower also does well in hanging baskets, and new selections have growth habits. The Elfin series has exceptional vigor, and plants reach a with flowers throughout the growing season.

Vinca rosea produces some very colorful plants that have exceptional foliage even in shade. The leaves are a rich green and somewhat waxy. While the plant may not produce as many flowers as other annuals, its combination of very colorful blooms and rich, green foliage makes this a sultable addition to the flower border, Fizzell says. Plants will bloom throughout the summer until a killing fall frost.

A number of other annuals will tolerate some shade. Lobelia, with its bright-blue flowers, makes a good border. Snapdragon, calendula, ageratum, and pansy may also be grown in a partial shade condition.

Thatch in bluegrass

Research shows there's a connection between thatch in bluegrass and the absence of earthworms. Scientists don't have all the details, but they know excessive use of msecticides causes thatch. In all lests where thatch builds up, there is an absence of worms.

Do worms feed on the dead clippings and plant surplus to control thatch or are they merely bystanders? Scientists don't know for sure

But they do know that two applications of chlordane or dieldrin a year caused thatch to appear in two years, while surrounding untreated turf remained free of thatch and seething with worms. The researchers also tested short-lived pesticides like carand dlazinon, applying them twice a year during a three-year study. These pesticides didn't cause

Choose landscape for all seasons

Choose landscape plants that will contribute to a colorful and interesting landscape throughout the year, suggests Floyd Giles, University of Illinois Extension horticulturist.

You can select trees and shrubs which provide color, interesting form and branching patterns and unique textural qualities during every sea-

Flowering trees and shrubs add color and fragrance to the landscape, but their display may last only a week or two. Trees and shrubs that produce colorful fruit provide a more lasting display. The fruit also attracts birds and other wildlife to your yard. Trees and shrubs of different bark colors can be used to provide an interesting and fairly permanent color display.

Giles recommends selecting different landscape plants that will produce a variety of green shades through the summer, and show brilliant colors in

You can also contrast diverse branch forms - slender, flexible twigs and heavy, angular branches. Some trees and shrubs have unusual branching patterns, such as the corkscrew willow's sleek, curvy branches.

Develop unique textural contrasts by planting trees and shrubs that have different kinds of leaves; for example, small, shredded leaves against large, smooth leaves.

Select contrasting bark textures. too. They range from smooth to corky to deeply ridged. The twigs of the winged euonymus have broad-winged structures that become frosted with snow in winter.

Many trees and shrubs have characteristic forms or silhouettes. Some are shaped like columns, some like pyramids, while others are mounded, globe-shaped or irregular. The branching pattern may be horizontal and stratified, weeping or contorted and picturesque.

Remember, however, that environ-mental conditions may limit the possible selections, Giles says. For example, some trees and shrubs need good soil drainage. Others need welldrained, yet moist soil. And some trees and shrubs are more shade tolerant than others.

To make the best choices, consider an overall plan combining appearance and practicality. By planting a combination of trees and shrubs with different colors, flowers, fruits, textures and shape characteristics, you can develop year-round attractiveness in your home landscape.

Think about planting bush plants

by BILL MEACHEM

One of the greatest bargains in gardening is a planting of one or more of the bush fruits. When most people think of fruits in the garden the first thing that comes to mind are the tree fruits such as apples, cherries, peaches or. In the South, citrus.

But where they can be grown, the bush fruits are not only equally productive for the amount of space they occupy, but they will bear at a younger age and are less troubled by pests and diseases.

Topping my list of bush fruits would be the raspberry. These are shrubs that only grow about four feet tall; a few plants can even do double duty as

Gardening tips

· Vegetables should be washed quickly and dried thoroughly before storage. Soaking destroys sugars, iron, vitamin C and other nutrients.

 Salt vegetables after cooking. Salting before hand or while they cook draws out moisture and dissolves nu-

· Rotating crops help ward off insects and plant diseases. Repeated plantings of the same crop or related vegetables encourage infestations and plant diseases. Seeds started indoors should be planted six to eight weeks before you plan to set them in the garden.

· Herbs planted as near the back door as possible make it easy to clip a few whenever they are needed for cooking or salads.

• Whenever possible, pick vegetables as close to mealtime as possible, for maximum flavor.

· Fast-maturing crops planted in the same area as slow-maturing crops makes maximum use of land. The fast crop should be harvested and picked before the slower one is ripe for harvest.

a small hedge or even background shrub. Raspberries are also fast becoming a gourmet fruit because you see fewer of them in the markets these days. They are not desirable as a commercial crop because they are difficult to ship. The fragile fruit will not stand any abuse at all. But what abuse can they receive when the "shipping" is just from the back yard to the kitchen table?

There are two kinds of raspberries sold today. One gives a single heavy fruiting in the spring and no more. These are great if you are preserving them in one way or another. The secend kind would be for the fresh fruit people like myself. These produce two crops during the year - smaller, of course, than the once-a-season kind. But, from a half-dozen plants you can have ample berries for cereal or ice cream topping in both late spring and Raspberries will fruit on the canes or stems that grew the previous year. The canes will fruit once and never again. This, then, gives us an indication of how we should prune them. Actually it is not pruning, merely removing the old canes in early spring, allowing only the younger ones to remain and fruit. On the twocrop, the prunning is the same. Be sure to thin them out because the plants can become quite thick. The blueberry is truly a double-duty plant. It is a handsome shrub and even if it didn't fruit it would look nice around the yard. But the fruit is the real bonus. The blueberry may not have as wide a growing range as some other bush fruits because it likes a soil that is acid — or, as some folks say, sour.

You, of course, must know if you are in an area where the soil is naturally acid. But even so you would be wise to plant them correctly to make sure the acid is proper. Dig an extralarge hole for them and mix in plenty of peatmoss. I mean plenty, not just a handful. What you will be doing is creating a miniature acid soil right around the plant. I have even heard of folks out in the Midwest where the soil is alkaline growing acid-loving blueberries in soil prepared in this

As for fertilizing, be sure to use an "acid" fertilizer on blueberries. This may be marked for camellias, rhododendrons or for acid plants. Why the plants want an acid soil could almost be one of those mysteries of plants and their likes and dislikes which I call their personality. You can't change the plant, but you can change

There are other bush fruits worthy of growing wherever possible. Currants, both black and red, make most excellent jelly. But in some states the sale of certain currants may be restricted because they are the "host" of a disease that attacks the pine trees. So to reduce any threat to the native woodlands, the sale of the fruit is curtailed, Some other bush fruits you may like to try are gooseberry also for preserving - and the blackberry. Blackberries are grown much the same way as raspberries.

Finally, there are two more fruits that are not exactly "bush" in form but are most highly prized in the home food patch. These are the strawberry and grape. The strawberry is a small plant and the grape, as we all know, is a vine. These plants are more universally grown than some of the others. In future columns I will be discussing each of these fruits individ-

Provide proper plant care

by JANET TARA

Providing proper care for plants does take some time and effort. But knowing the reasons for what you are doing may help develop your patience and determination.

Why bother to drain the excess water into the sink when it seeps through the bottom of the flower pot? Because this rids the soil of toxic salts and minerals that build up from tap water, natural soil changes and the necessary fertilizers that are added. Leaving the water in the saucer to evaporate doesn't do the job. The water containing the salts collects in the dish and rises back up into the pot as the soil dries.

Why give plants a weekly shower, especially since hanging plants are so difficult to move? Not only does this raise the humidity level, but it has indirect benefits. Bugs and diseases are encouraged by dusty, dirty leaves. House plants are not in their natural environment; gentle breezes don't keep the surrounding air moving and rain never washes the leaves. The once-a-week bath is really a necessity, not a luxury, although it calls for gentle handling of plants with long runners and leaves. You should change a plant's soil approximately every two years whether or not it needs repotting to a bigger container. The earth gets "tired" and many of the nutrients washed away in watering are never replaced, even with fertilizing.

Be careful with fertilizer

Be careful of the amount and type of fertilizer you use on your lawn warns James E. Schuster, Extension horticulturist at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service in Wheaton. To avoid serious disease problems, Schuster recommends that only one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet per application be applied and that the frequency of application should be held to a minimum (probably less than four) applications per year. Higher applications and/or frequent applications of fertilizer may help increase the occurrence or severity of disease problems in the home lawn.

If a high nitrogen fertilizer (nitrogen is the first number on a fertilizer bag and If the number is higher than 12 it is getting too high) or if frequent applications of fertilizer is desired, then a preventive fungicide spray program should probably be followed.

In addition to being careful with the type and amount of fertilizer used. other cultural practices will help reduce disease problems. Schuster suggests that a two inch mow height be maintained from the first cut in the spring to the last cut in the fall. Longer grass or short grass causes greater stress and increases the possibility of severe lawn problems. Other practices are never mow if possible when the grass is wet. Mowing wet grass helps to spread disease.

Water before 3 p.m. so the lawn has a chance to dry off before dark. The longer the lawn stays wet, the greater the chance for disease and the greater the severity of the disease problem.

Apply on inch of water per application. Use a coffee can under the sprinkler to determine when you have applied one inch of surface water.

The one inch (or the difference between one inch and the amount of rain received that week) should be applied all in one day but slow enough to avoid run off.

Remove dead grass (thatch) from around the base of the grass plants only if the thatch is a half inch or more. The best time to remove the thatch is in late August. The second best time is in the spring.

Grass clippings need to be collected when one has a thatch problem or has a severe disease problem. Indications are that frog's eye caused by Fussarium roseum and a serious lawn disease that is increasing greatly in Northeastern Illinois, only occurs on well fertilized lawns, that are well manicured. Therefore, it would probably be a wise idea to reduce the amount of nitrogen used on the lawn and the frequency of appli-

Many people feel that plants grown in commercial greenhouses will be completely bug-free. Don't you be-

I worked for several years in a commercial greenhouse and it was a constant battle between the grower and the bugs. Spraying, spraying and more spraying was the order of the day — and still the bugs often got ahead of us.

In some specialty commercial greenhouses the concern for insects and plant disease is so great that you have to step into a disinfectant before you can walk into a greenhouse. This is to prevent any pest organisms insects or diseases - from riding in on your shoes. Yes, this can happen.

To avoid pests there are several steps you can take. The first is to examine the plant carefully before you buy it. Sure, you want a plant that is the right size and shape, but look beyond this. Examine both sides of the leaves for any discoloration or signs that something has been chewing on

Then rub your finger along the stem. Green lice are difficult to see and the only way you can know they are there is to feel them. Don't be afraid of the lice; they won't bite you.

Next go to the soil. Scratch it a little and see if you can spot anything crawling around.

Finally, gently tap the plant with the back of your hand and watch for a swarm of tiny flies. If you see any, go to another shop for your plants. This is white fly, a major threat to a number of plants.

If your plant passes the leaf, soil and tap test then you can take a chance. But before you bring it in with your other plants or put it in a terrarium, spray it with an aerosol to

If you are going to plant the specimen in a terrarium, remove as much of the old soil as possible without damaging the roots. Gentleness is the key. Then plant in your own sterile

They responded with enthusiasm when it was learned they could bring the United States Olympic basketball team to the area for a June visit.

This was a rare chance to let people in these communities get a close look at the Olympians who will try to bring the gold medal back to the U.S.

The Olympic team will be in Mount Prospect at Prospect High School, next Thursday evening to play a formidable group of stars coached by Ray Meyer of DePaul University.

Yes, the show will go on advertised. and it should be a good one, but this entire project has not been without its headaches. If you think professional sports are in a state of chaos, you should try working with some of the amateur groups in this country.

Jack Whisler has tried, "This has been quite an experience," said Whisler, the area businessman who has been instrumental in bringing the Olympic team to Mount Prospect. "It makes me wonder if we aren't wrong in our entire approach to international competition. There are so many strange rules, so many ironies in thinking." The real problems have stemmed not from the appearance of the Olympic team itself in Mount Prospect but from the squad that will serve as the opponent. It was hoped, and with good reason, that some Chicago area collegians could be used to face the Olympic team.

The organizers wanted qualified opponents, but they also thought the addition of players with names familiar to Chicago area fans would add some excitement.

'We wanted college players who attended area schools not because of their drawing power but because of the community involvement," said Whisier. "Let's face it. The gym at Prospect doesn't seat that much anyway. But it would have been a great opportunity for a Dave Corzine (Hersey and DePaul) or a Billy McKinney (Zion-Benton and Northwestern) or a Tom Bergen (Prospect and Michigan) to play before the people they know." What was needed was a waiver from the NCAA, NCAA Constitution 3-9 (c) permits the Council to waive the rule to permit outside participation in official Pan American or Olympic tryouts and competition or

They assembled in good faith as participation in other types of international competition.

Loose interpretation of "to participate in official Olympic tryouts and competition" could have been the an-

Time became a factor. If the waiver had been granted, the organizers for the Mount Prospect game would have had no real headaches assembling a team. DePaul's Meyer and Gene Sullivan, the exhibition game manager, have strong college contacts.

"We called the NCAA and then waited about a week before anyone. even responded," said Whisler. "Actually. it's incredible just how confusing it is knowing where to contact anyone in regard to the Olympics.

"We finally changed our request to Include only those players who reccived a waiver for the Olympic tryouts, hoping that would be acceptable. And we waited."

The initial contact was made May 21 and the official refusal came June 10. The NCAA would not budge. They said that participation against the U.S. Olympic team did not constitute official tryouts or international competition, obviously a strict interpretation.

Basically, what the denial emphasized was that if a Russian team, for example, were playing June 24 in Mount Prospect, it would have been OK for college undergraduates Corzine or McKinney or Bergen to play. The waiver would have been granted.

"The logic of being able to prepare the Russian team for competition and not the U.S. team leaves me cold,' said Whisler.

The Mount Prospect organizers were asking for a game matching amateurs against amateurs. The NCAA was, in effect, saying it was fine to have professionals play the Oiympians (and many of those Olympic players are undergraduates), but it was not proper to have collegians

And, incredibly, it would have been proper for high school players to also play against the Olympic team.

"I mean, what kind of system is this?" Whisler asked. "They have a funny way of setting up distinctions. You can bring in high school kids or pros to play against our amateur Olympic team, but you can't use players still in college, Incredible."

Whister has a good point. I can understand why the NCAA would hesitate to grant exceptions to rules, but this is the Olympics, not some second-class event, and there could be some help given to people who are trying to showcase the Olympic team in their communities.

The show will go on Thursday evening. Bob Love of the Chicago Bulls has helped assemble a solld group of performers to challenge the Olym-

Bulls have 1st choice in draft

HYANNIS, Mass. - The National and American Basketball Associations ended their nine-year battle for pro talent Thursday with the merger of four ABA teams into the NBA.

Under the agreement, hammered out in all-night bargaining sessions, the ABA franchises in Denver, San Antonio, Indiana and New York will join the NBA next season at a cost of $3.2 million in each per franchise.

The new league will consist of 22 teams, broken into four divisions, with one former ABA team in each division. The rosters of the merged ABA teams were frozen as of May 1, 1976, negating draft rights of original NBA teams to players who signed in the other league.

The players from the St. Louis-Utah franchise and from the Kentucky Colonels will join players of other defunct ABA teams in a dispersal draft to be held sometime in the next week. The Bulls, ewners of the worst pro record, will pick first and probably take Artis Gilmore, super center for the Kentucky Colonels.

ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, who probably will gain a position in the NBA hierarchy, said he was "guaranteed" the ABA teams would not be lumped into a fifth divi-

The new divisional alignments will be determined within the next week so schedule maker Eddie Gottlieb can begin preparing a schedule for next season. ABA Players' Assn. IWyer Prentiss Yancey, called into negotiations late Wednesday, said he no longer foresaw a suit on behalf of ABA players from the Utah-St. Louis and Kentucky teams.

The accord was reached after the ABA owners agreed to pay in full the contracts of all ABA players not picked up in the dispersal draft, Another pending suit filed by the ABA against the NBA apparently was To be dropped after a scheduled Friday hearing before federal Judge Robert L. Carter of the Southern New York District Court.

Carter forced the merger talks by telling both sides they should try to iron out differences before the case came to court. The ABA had filed an anti-trust suit against the NBA charging the older league with a monopoly. The merger culminates continuing efforts by the ABA to enter the NBA. Five years ago similar talks were held but the NBA advisory committee voted down a merger.

Explaining why the older league changed its mind, New York Knicks' President Michael Burke said "sometimes a girl kisses you and sometimes she doesn't."

Loose ends still must be tied up in the aftermath of the agreement which did not materialize until after 8 a.m. Thursday. There remains the matter of several ABA players, such as Caldwell Jones of Utah-St. Louis, who signed NBA contracts to take effect after their ABA contracts expired.

The official vote of the NBA Board of Governors was 17-1. Seattle owner San Schulman said he voted against the merger because "I didn't like the way the dispersal draft proposas? was presented at the last minute. They (O'Brien et al) came in and threw the dispersal plan on the table. The special exceptions for Jones and the other players are going to help New Orleans, Los Angeles and Philadelphia."

Schulman said he was pleased the merger went through because "It's good for basketball.'

The ABA side remained unhappy that all six teams were not merged but the NBA was adamant on taking only the four healthiest franchises frustrated golfer must look, Patty Berg runs through her golf clinic in Itasca. Patty's foremost tip to her listeners was, "Ball first, then the turf.

Finish high and let it fly, then swing to the finish and hold it." Patty, who was the first president of the Ladies PGA, has won 81 tournaments in her continuing career.

Golfers should listen when Patty Berg talks

by DON FRISKE

A sultry calmness fell over the greens of the Itasca Country Club as the perfect medium for Patty Berg's contagious personality.

It wasn't long before the friendly atmosphere was spreading throughout the course as Patty brought her golf clinic to the club on a warm and quiet afternoon.

Patty has given more golf clinics than any other person in the Orld. She is one of the most gifted and popular golfers to ever play the game and, at 58, she still stuns the crowds with her keen accuracy and knack for perfection.

For 36 years she has worked with the Wilson Sporting Goods Co., giving clinics and teaching others to do the same.

The ingredients are simple. She loves people and golf and the result is a magnetic ability to delight and instruct those who

Easy or not, Patty's clinics are a success. When she speaks, people listen, especially those interested in improving their game. She covers just about everything and she does so by using anecdotes, short stories, and a good amount of light humor. But she still manages to cover the weaknesses of any particular golfer in the crowd.

Patty is one who speaks from experience. She helped put together the Ladies PGA in 1948 and she has won 81 tournaments in her career while being a three-time recipient of the Vare Trophy for the lowest stroke average.

"In 1955, my 74.55 stroke average led all women golfess. Now the leading average is around 72, but there are many reasons for this," Patty said. "Today, we know more about the swing and there is better equipment and clothing, especially shoes.

"But the biggest difference is in vitamins and nutrition. People are in better shape today."

Being in shape for tournament play has been a concern of Patty's since she was slowed down by a serious cancer operation in 1971. Tournaments require constant walking and this is the reason Patty has gone back to playing exhibitions after the clinics. "I have to make sure I do a lot of walking to get back in shape," Patty said. "If I don't walk on the golf course, I walk at night. But I love to walk anyways. That's one

Martin, Parker to face Olympians

Two more basketball standouts have been added to the all-stars who will challenge the United States Olympic team next Thursday evening in the Prospect High School fieldhouse.

Larue Martin of the Portland Trail Blazers, former star at Chicago's Loyola University, and Sonny Parker the 1976 Southwest Conference Playerof-the-Year at Texas A&M, will be performing in the prestigious game.

Martin, a 6-foot-11 center, was the first player drafted by the professienals after his senior year in college. He earned his cellege reputation by playing on equal terms with Bill Walton of UCLA and Jim Chones of Marquette in publicity glare of the Chicago Stadium.

Parker should provide some crowdpleasing dunks Thursday. He won the dunking contest in the recent Pizza Hut All-Star game after a sensational college career. The all-stars, paced by the Chicago Bulls' Bob Love, will hold open practice sessions Monday and Tuesday in Prospect's fieldhouse from 1-3 p.m. and Wednesday from 4-6 p.m.

Other players on the squad that will be coached by Ray Meyer of DePaul University are Mickey Johnson and Cliff Pondexter of the Bulls: Roger Powell of Illinois State, a former Joliet Central All-Stater; Bill Robinzine of the Kansas City Kings, former De-Paul University star; Earl King of West Texas St.; and Ron Barrow of Southern University.

The Olympic team will be paced by such All-Americans as Indiana's Scott May and Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley. The U.S. team will fly in on Thursday, staying for only that evening at the Arlington Park Hilton. Tickets are still available for the contest Thursday that will begin at 8 p.m. in the Prospect fieldhouse. Tickets are $6 and may be purchased at the Mount Prospect State Bank, Busse and Emerson in Mount Prospect.

Amateur leads U.S. Open

DULUTH, Ga. (UPI) — Mike Reid, a Brigham Young University senior whose record is something less than spectacular, shot a three-under-par 67 Thursday and became the first amateur in five years to lead the U.S. Open golf championship.

A first team college All-America iast year — but not this year — Reid was the only player to break par on a day that saw many of the "name" pros left far behind and griping about, of all things, the length of the grass in the fairways.

Five players shared second place at 70 even par, including John Mahaffey, the Open runnerup in a playoff last year, and Masters champion Ray

Not since Jim Simons ted following 54 holes in 1971 had an amateur been in front after any round in the Open.

To do it, Reid birdled three holes in a row midway through his round—the ninth, 10th, and 11th—and then had to survive the treacherous finishing holes on the Atlanta Athletic Club's Highlands course.

Earlier in the hot, muggy day, those holes had killed off the hopes of such prominent pros as Tom Welskopf (three over for the last two holes), Johnny Miller (three over for the last three), Bobby Nichols (six over for the last six) and Al Gelberger (double bogey at 18).

But the 22-year-old Reid came down the stretch with seven straight pars, just like he had been doing it all his He hasn't really.

Friday, June 18, 1976

The biggest victory of Reid's college career came in last year's Western Athletic Conference title meet, a championship be failed to defend in 1976. He missed the 36-hole cut last year in his first appearance in the Open and in the U.S. Amateur last summer he was eliminated in the first round by a grocery store clerk named Marshall Marraccini from Elizabeth, Pa.

In the group at 70 with Mahaffey and Floyd, who made a bogey on the 460-yard finishing hole, were Geiberger, Rod Funseth, who also bogeyed 18, and Rik Massengale.

Until Reid'as strong finish, the talk of the tournament had been all about grass and lawn mowers.

hale Irwin, the 1974 Open champion and a man who does not know how to lie, started the controversy swirling with his bone honest opinion that the course was "the worst prepared golf course I've ever played for a major championship."

Lou Graham, the defending champion, agreed.

"The fairways were as bad as I've ever played for a U.S. Open," Graham said.

The whole dispute concerned only a quarter-inch of grass, officials saying the fairways were not cut as short as they were supposed to be due to a "misunderstanding."

That may not seem like much — Jack Nicklaus observed that the grass can grow that much, or more, in the course of a day's play — but others like Arnold Palmer and Gary Player agreed with Irwin

they said it resulted in "flyer" liesin the fairways, which made it difficult to put any "action" on the ball, and took much of the skill out of the game.

Not surprisingly, however, none of the low scorers saw anything wrong with the course, and perhaps it was Nicklaus, who shot a 74 that included three three-putts and no birdles, who best put the whole thing into perspective.

"The grass was long," he said, "but we all played the same golf course. It's not that big a deal."

Four players were tied at 71, one over, including Don January, the comeback hero of the old folks set. January, 46, won the Tournament of Champions this year. Others at 71 were Butch Baird, a 17-year tour veteran who has not earned exempt status since 1962; 1974 U.S. Amateur champion Jerry Pate, a rookie pro, and Mike Morley.

There was a big group at 72 headed by Player, Hubert, Green, the leading money winner on this year's tour and Ben Crenshaw. Others at that figure were Fuzzy Zoeller, Tom Jenkins, Bob E. Smith, Mike Shea, Randy Glover and Lee Elder.

Weiskopf was at 73. Miller and British Open champ Tom Watson at 74 with Nicklaus, and Palmer, Irwin and Graham at 75.

The field of 150 will be trimmed to the low 60 and ties following the second round on Friday.

The winner of this national championship will receive $42,000, unless it happens to be Reid, or any of the 15 other amateurs in the field. But the odds are strongly against them. No amateur has won since Johnny Goodman in 1933.

—Sports w prld — Bulls Study choices

The Chicago Buils, who have the No. 1 choice in the American Basetball Association dispersal draft and probably will get another pick in the second round, don't know which players they favor, Personnel Director Jerry Krause said Thursday.

The Bulls once had National Basekthall Association rights to such players as Artis Gilmore. Louis Dampier, Bird Averitt and Maurice Lucas. Krause confirmed, but he said these rights no longer were valid. There was speculation that the Bulls would draft Gillmore, a 7-foot center who played with the Kentucky Cotonels, not included in the merger of four ABA teams into the NBA.

But Krause said, "We'll have to look at the entire situation. The ownership is at the NBA meeting and I have not heard from them. When they return, we'll talk about all the ramifications."

Krause said he did not know but assumed there would be 24 players available to draft. The Bulls, who had the poorest record in the NBA last season, will get the first pick, although Krause said he had not been officially informed of that yet. He said the Bulls will probably get another pick in the second round.

"Then teams can pass their draft choice, too," he said, "so there could be several second round picks." Krause added he did not know whether the Bulls could trade the draft choice, and pointed out "there are an awful lot of legal ramifications in the whole situation."

Sayres may become athletic director

Five persons, including former Chicago Bears running back Gayle Sayers, were named Thursday as finalists in the search for a new athletic director for Southern Illinois University. Under consideration besides Sayers are Paul Lambert, SIU's basketball coach; Leo Cahil, former general manager of the Memphis Southmen of the World Football League; Dale Foster, athletic director at the University of Dayton; and Bill Belknap, assistant athletic director at the University of Arizona.

Connors has unwelcomed day off...

NOTTINGHAM, England — Jimmy Connors had an unwelcome day off Thursday when rain washed out the quarter-finals at the $100,000 John Player grass court tennis tournament. With the exception of Ilie Nastase, all Connors' main rivals are out of contention for the $16,000 top prize at Nottingham, so they will be that much fresher when Wimbledon opens next Monday.

Connors, allowing he gets by Dutchman Tom Okker, will have to play two matches today and a possible final on Saturday.

The prospect of further rain — always possible during an English summer — means that the final may have to be postponed until Sunday which would disrupt the first day's program at Wimbledon. Players are guaranteed a day's rest between major tournaments.

...But Evert advances to semis

EASTBOURNE. England — Chris Evert defeated Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 7-5, 6-4, Thursday to reach the semifinals of the $100.000 Colgate tennis tournament, but three other Americans failed to negotiate the quarter-final hurdle.

Evert, who complained earlier in the week that she was winning too easily, got the tough match she desired in this, her first grass court tournament for 11 months. Next week's Wimbledon championship will find her the top seed and even money betting favorite.

Evert's semifinal opponent will be Russia's Olga Morozova, a 6-3, 6-4 winner over Rosie Casals of San Francisco.

The other semifinal will be between Britain's Virginia Wade, the defending champion, and Martina Navratilova, the Czechoslovak defector who now lives in California.

'Jefferson Street' Joe arrested

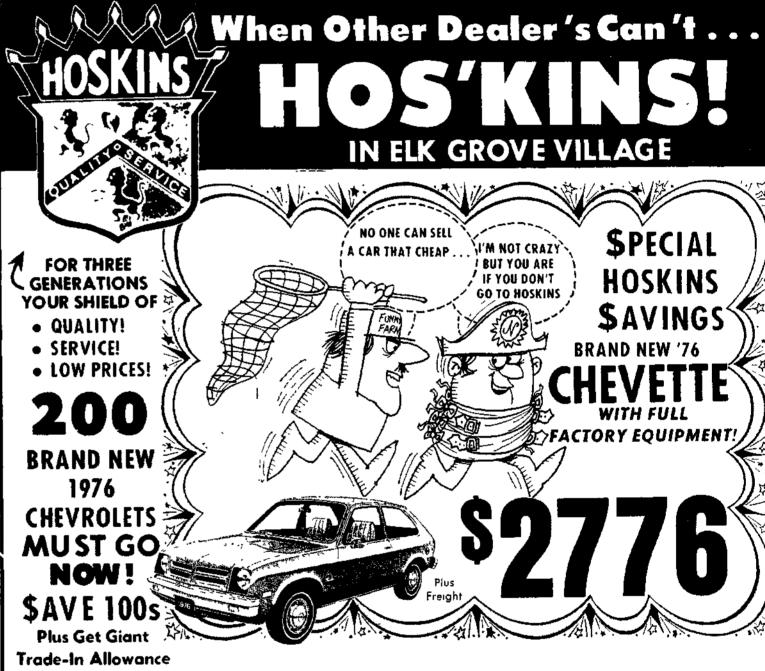

NASHVILLE — Professional football quarterback "Jefferson Street" Joe Gilliam was arrested on weapons and drug charges Wednesday after being stopped on a routine traffic offense. Gilliam, who was obtained on waivers by the New Orleans Saints from the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers earlier this week, was clocked traveling 85 miles per hour by a state trooper just west of here on Interstate 40.

Trooper Kevin Horan said the 25-year-old Gilliam, whose father is offensive coach at Tennessee State University, was charged when a search of his car turned up a pistol and drugs — reportedly co-Gilliam was charged with possession of a controlled substance, carrying a weapon and reckless driving.

And in other sports news . . .

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn listened to all parties involved in the $3 million sales of Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue and appeared sufficiently impressed with the reasons given him so that he was expected to okay the deals this morning . . . Pitchers Ken Holtzman and Doyle Alexander, two of the players purchased by the New York Yankees from the Baltimore Orioles in Tuesday night's 10-player deal, had 20 per cent pay cuts restored to them although they remained unsigned . . . San Diego pitcher Randy Jones turned in a string of six victories last month to win the May poll in the Hickok Professional Athlete of the year balloting

White Sox keep losing as Hunter stops them, 5-4

From Herald Wire Services to the Poor baserunning kept the White ball. Sox from scoring the tying run in the bottom of the eighth inning and the New York Yankees held on for a 5-4 win Thursday night.

It was the seventh straight loss for the White Sox as Catfish Hunter picked up his eighth win against six losses. He got relief help from Sparky Lyle, who earned his 10th save.

With one out in the eighth and Jorge Orta on third, Bucky Dent hit a long drive to right field for the White Sox. Fortunately for the Yankees, Orta must have thought there were two outs as he broke for home.

He made it halfway down the line when he discovered his mistake and had to go back to third. If he had tagged up and then broke for home, Dent would have had a sacrifice fly.

Earlier in the inning the Sox got a break when Yankee first baseman Chris Chambliss threw wild to the plate with the bases loaded, hoping for a forceout. Chet Lemon and Ralph Garr scored to make it 5-4

Orta, who had reached on a single to load the bases, took third on the Yankee error but, because of his mishap, that was as far as he went.

The Yankess scored two runs in their half of the eighth off Clay Carroll, who had come in to replace starter Terry Forster. Lou Piniella led off with a double and then Sandy Alomar came in to pinch run.

Alomar went to third on a groundout and was followed by Craig Netties, who was given an intentional walk. Pinch hitter Oscar Gamble picked up an infield single, bringing home Alomar, and Nettles later scored on a groundout to make it 5-2. The White Sox had a 1-0 lead going into the fourth, when the Yankess tied it with Thurman Munson scoring on a double play which kept the inning from becoming disastrous as the Yankees followed it with two more sin-

In the first inning the Sox scored when Lemon doubled, was sacrificed to third, and came home on a long fly

But the Yankess took the lead for good in the sixth by sending two runners across the plate. These were another gift of the White Sox when three of their fielders converged on a Fran Healy popup, letting the ball fall between them for a double.

Willie Randolph, who was tagged out at second trying to stretch the hit.

There was a time in the game when Hunter retired 11 Sox in a row before giving up a single with one out in the sixth It as Hunter's ninth straight victory over the Sox, giving them their longest losing streak in five

Paula Shearer won the 10th annual Tournament of Champions Golf title earlier this week at Elmhurst Country

Mount Prospect's outstanding golfing resident turned in a 37-38-75 over the testing par 73 layout to defeat 60 other past Illinois tourney champions.

Shearer dominated the Northern Illinois Women's Golf Assn. field. Runner-up Betty Sterner, of Glenview, failed to break 80, shooting an 82.

"It's a very challenging course, but everything seemed to be going my way." said Shearer, who enjoyed her lowest competitive round of 1976. It was the first time she won the event after a runner-up finish in three earlier tries.

Shearer won the McHenry Invitational last August and is a past two-time champion (1971-72) of the Illinois Women's State Championship. This latter tourney will be hosted by Mauh-Nah-Tee-See Country Club in Rockford next week, beginning on Monday and winding up on Friday.

Shearer teaches at Forest View High School and also coaches girls'

NEW YORK (UPI) - "There's too much furor over the Oakland A's sale of players to the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox," is the opinion of Marvin Miller, executive director of the baseball's player association.

Miller, one of the principles invited to a hearing Thursday on the $3 million sale of Oakland players said "I'm afraid people have such short memories and have a terrible tendency to jump to conclusions."

Baseball's staunch labor leader said all the reaction to the sale of the Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to Boston and Vida Blue to the Yankees relates to the revision in the reserve rule sys-

"Let's put things in proper prospective," Miller said. "First of all, there are no free agents involved in the deals. None of the players can declare themselves free agents until the end of the season (Rudi and Fingers are playing without contracts, while Blue is said to have signed a three-year pact with Oakland prior to the sale).

"Second, long before the Andy Messersmith decision or any revision of Rules, experienced baseball people were aware that whole clubs have been dismantled by their owners for cash purposes - not once but several

"While those were news stories, you don't get the hysteria you have now." Referring to the sale of the Philadelphia Athletics Hundred Thousand Dollar infield in the early 1930's, Miller explained: "I think every owner would like to get what Connie Mack received several times. But they like to forget the Yanks of another era who used cash and the Kansas City Ball club as a 'Farm team' to build a dynasty.'

Miller hastened to add that a former American League president (Joe Cronin) was sold by Washington to the Red Sox for cash and that Boston sold Babe Ruth to the Yanks in money transaction.

of my hobbies." When Patty was growing up in Minnesota, she enjoyed playing football but disliked all the bruises that went with it.

"I tore so many clothes and got so many black eyes it was becoming costly for clothing and medical blils. So I decided I had to get into another sport," Patty said.

She tried speed skating for awhile and then decided on golf. Her skill in giving clinics also goes back to her childhood.

"When I first played golf, every Saturday and Sunday that I wasn't playing, my dad had me give some sort of clinic for charity. They were mostly for hospitals," Patty said.

She used to give her clinic six days each week, but that number has dropped to three since the cancer operation. But she still gets the material she uses by continuous reading.

"I'm a great reader," she said. "In other words, I steal. Every night I read for a couple of hours and only some of the things I read pertain to golf."

The other portions of what she covers in a clinic come from the feedback of practicing golfers. At the end of the year, Patty considers what the people want to know.

"I find that 75 per cent of the people, and a lot of good people, sometimes fall into a bad grip, Patty said. "The grip is important because it is a person's only contact with the club and the ball and the game."

Patty is surprised with the knowledge people have about golf. but she said they still have many questions. She carries a 38-page outline around with her during her clinics as a reference for the things she wants to talk about.

Even though there is about an equal amount of men that pay close attention to Patty's golf tips, it is with the women that she holds the greatest rapport.

This is natural, though, because of what she has done for women golfers throughout her career. She was the first president of the LPGA and her battles with Babe Didrikson Zaharias were some of the finest golf matches in the sport's history.

"Babe and I were great friends, but we played in a lot of competition." Patty said. "I rememher when we played a 36-hole title match and were tied after the first 18. The , on the 17th hole of the second round, Babe but the ball in the water and I won the tourney by one shot."

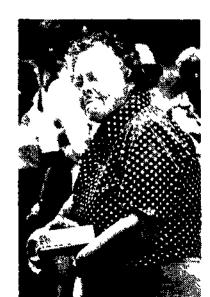

Patty also recalls the time she ruined Babe's birthday as she came from four strokes behind with six holes to play in the Western Open.

Babe worked with Patty in the formation of the LPGA, which started out gradually but, according to Patty, is growing by leaps and bounds now.

"I think it will get bigger and bigger, greater and greater, and better and better," Patty said. "We have a lot of new young players on the tour with a lot of col-

But Patty continues to travel around the country, presenting her vast golf knowledge to newcomers and oldtimers of the

She still plays about nine tournaments each year and then there is the annual Patty Berg Classic in St. Paul, Minn., which will be held during the third week in August this year.

The key to Patty's success is the continual interest in improving her game while maintaining the skills she already has.

"You have to strive for perfection because in golf you win not through chance, but through preparation," she said.

Mickey Wright, another famous woman golfer, once asked Patty if there was anything she would change in her career.

"I told her I wouldn't change anything because I probably wouldn't be this lucky twice," Patty said.

Readers react to Charlie Finley

Dear Editor:

What's all the commotion about Charlle Finley's selling his best players? It's no big thing and it's not any different from what Connie Mack used to do every to years or so when he broke up his pennant-winning Athletics. Actually, the situations were very similar. Mack sold his players because they were costing him too much in salaries. And for a man like Mack who was field manager, owner and general manager - the challenge of rebuilding was just as exciting as winning a pennant year after year.

I think that the sale of the A's will help baseball, not only because it will increase interest - especially in the American League where it is lagging - but also because when all is said and done. I don't think the acquisitions will help the Yankees and Red Sox that much. Face it, one of those two teams would have probably won the East division anyway, so what's the difference?

BASEBALL'S RUIN?

Fans Forum:

The sale of Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue from the A's by owner Charlie Finely has marked the beginning of the end of major league baseball, in my humble opinion. It seems to me that Finley has symbolized the utter frustration of all the major league owners and general managers by selling off his superstars to the highest bidders in a move that was designed simply to avoid paying them an exorbitant salary.

What will become of those players when they tire of playing for their new employers? Where will they go when they again become dissatisfied with their paychecks?

This development - and the weakening of the reserve clause - will ruin baseball, mark my words. If every player is a free agent and can bargain for its own conditions, they will all end up in New York or Boston where all the money and fame is.

In an effort to raise the status of mechanics, members of the service industry, manufacturers and dealers in 1972 founded the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. Under the institute program, which is voluntary, a mechanic pays a small fee to take all of five tests on different systems of the car. If a mechanic passes any one test he is entitled to wear an orange, white and blue shoulder patch. If he passes all five tests, he qualifies as a certified general automobile mechanic — a master craftsman.

Vida Blue, Reggie Smith, and Rollie Fingers were changing uniforms for cash or fringe players, what were the local gurus up to?

They were standing pat, of all things. No trades, no deals. What do the fans of Chicago expect - a pennant? — if the major league teams don't at least take some risks with their money?

Clinic considers 'human aspect'

by ART MUGALIAN

There's an amazing thing happening at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena in Mount Prospect this week.

Stan Mikita and his friends are building a dynasty.

Mikita's American Hearing Impaired Hockey Assn. was once everybody's pet charity, the receptacle for people's good will. Newspaper columns lauded the Chicago Black Hawk star for donating his time and effort to such a "worthy cause." Mikita had become a media hero because of his work with disadvantaged deaf kids.

Gee, that Mikita must be a great guy, they said.

The time for lavish praise is over. The time for pity - if there was ever a time for pity - is over. In two short years the AHIHA clinic has surpassed even the most optimistic expectations of its founders.

There is no longer much talk about the wonderful things Mikita has done for the hard-of-hearing. That is taken for granted. So is the marvelous job Mikita has done in rounding up countless present and forme National Hockey League stars to serve as assistant coaches for the clinic, which is being held for the third time all this week at the Mount Prospect facility.

Most of the talk centers around the potential for continued growth in the AHIHA and the opportunity these kids will take away with them when they leave the clinic.

The 63 young hockey players who are in camp this year will form the nucleus of a strong, capable team when the 1979 Deaf Olympics rolls

"I think we're looking at the human aspect here more than at hockey," said Mikita. "But this is a darn good team rìght bere."

Mikita sees their chances for success increased not only in hockey but in all phases of life, too.

The man who, with Mikita, founded the AHIHA is Irv Tiahnybik, a Chicago businessman whose son is a deaf hockey player.

"Our purpose is to bring the kids in here and develop their hockey skills, let them have some fun, and maybe change their way of thinking," said Tiahnybik.

"Some of them feel that nobedy wants to associate with them," said Tiahnybik. "They have problems but not problems that can't be overcome. We have a motto here at our school: we don't have problems, just solu-

The AHIHA's main objective is to send these kids home with a little bit of self-confidence and a better chance to play on teams with normal chil-

"We want them to be accepted, not rejected," said Tiahnybik.

In that, the clinic has been successful. Already, two of the AHIHA's students have received pro hockey tryouts. Mikita explained some of the other purposes of the program during a break in the clinic earlier this week.

"Our near-range goal is the Deaf Olympics," said Mikita, an 18-year veteran of the Black Hawks. "What we are trying to do is get together a junior team, a team that can compete nationally and internationally.

"Eventually, we'd like to have a team based here in Chicago - a team made up of Chicago area kids," Mikita continued.

So Mikita and his assistants - guys like "Moose" Vasko and Gene Ubriaco - put in long hours with the boys, drilling them in every facet of the game.

"All these guys are great teachers," said Tiahnybik. And to think that some people say hockey players are no good as teachers. Of course, at some hockey schools they bring in an NHL player for a day and that's it. But these guys really work hard."

Perhaps the hardest worker in camp is Dr. David Sparks, a researcher in psychoacoustics at the University of Washington and a former college hockey player himself. Sparks takes his turn on the ice as teacher and doubles as the clinic's resident audiologist.

"I'm mainly interested in helping these kids play on normal-hearing hockey teams," said the 29-year-old Sparks.

"There's no reason why they can't," Sparks added matter-of-factly.

"The pro players have surprisingly few problems communicating," Sparks noted. "It's remarkable to see the ability of these untrained hockey players to get their concepts through to the deaf kids."

This week's clinic will climax with a game between the Deaf Olympic Squad and the Mikita All-Stars at 10 a.m. Saturday at Randhurst. The game will be open to the public and a $3 tax deductible admission will be

Why of veteran hospital killings goes unanswered

DETROIT (UPI) - Federal prosecutors left the most intriguing question unanswered Thursday in their case against two Filipino nurses charged with poisoning 15 patients at a veterans hospital. Why?

The two women were arrested Wednesday following a nearly yearlong investigation into a mysterious series of respiratory failures at the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Hospital involving over 50 patients, 11 of whom died.

The nurses, Filipina B. Narciso, 30, of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Leonora M. Perez, 31, of Evanston, Ill., were arraigned Thursday on first-degree murder charges in five of the deaths.

They also were charged with 10 counts of administering in ravenous injections of a potentially lethal muscle relaxant and one count of conspiracy to commit murder.

Ten of their alleged victims suffered respiratory failure, but lived.

Miss Narciso arrived for her artaignment in Detroit handcuffed but smiling and at one point laughed with a woman FBI agent. Mrs. Perez, a former Ann Arbor resident transferred to the Chicago VA hospital after the series of deaths in Ann Arbor, faced arraignment in Chicago.

U.S. Magistrate Carl B. Sussman set a $500,000 cash bond for Mrs. Perez, waived her right to a removal hearing and orderd her "removed forthwith to the Michigan jurisdic-

Her attorney, Michael Moran, argued for a lesser bond, citing Mrs. Perez' husband of three years, her son, Christopher, 3, and the fact she is four months pregnant.

Sussman denied a lesser bond be cause of the "grave charges."

In Detroit, U.S. Magistrate Barbara Hackett ordered Miss Narcisco held without bond on the recommendation of the chief prosecutor, who contended, "The charges contained in the indictment, short of treason, are the most serious in the federal code."

At a news conference in Detroit, Richard Delonis, chief of the U.S., attorney's criminal division, declined comment on all questions even remotely related to the motive for the crimes. He said it would be "inappropriate to comment on any evi-

Reforms in the way House conducts itself proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First-term House members, fearing a backlash from the congressional sex scandal. proposed reforms Thursday in the way the House conducts itself - including a grievance procedure for any more Elizabeth Rays on the payroll.

"We don't want to see these decent good members go down the drain," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., expressing concern that freshmen congressmen, with tenuous claims to the loyalties of constituents, may take most of the punishment at the polls for loose congressional morality.

A task force of the 81 new Democratic members of the House proa 23-point reform program which would strip Rep. Wayne Hays' House Administration Committee of its power to increase members' fringe benefits without a vote of the House.

One of the reforms would establish an ombudsman or a grievance panel where employes of congressmen who feel abused by their bosses could take complaints for a hearing.

In related developments:

• Rep. Joe D. Waggonner Jr., D-La., 57, said his arrest last winter by a policewoman posing as a prostitute was "an effort - I now realize to entrap me." Scripps-Howard Newspapers said Waggonner offered $50 to a policewoman on a Washington street Jan. 20, but was released from custody with no record of the incident made when he identified himself as a congressman.

• Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, was expected to announce in Salt Lake City soon whether he would withdraw as a candidate for a second term. He was arrested last week by two policewomen posing as prostitutes.

· Six members of the House who are also clergymen said in interviews they felt condemnation of Congress as a whole arising from the sex scandals was unjustified.

Rep. Jerome Ambro, D-N.Y., chairman of the "Freshman Caucus," said the new members would press for adoption of their reform proposals this year.

Under the proposals, an independent citizens commission would be created to study the way Congress handles its internal matters and pays

4 area residents named to health agency board

Four Northwest suburban residents recently were elected to the board of directors of the Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency.

They are: Mary Mollica Forkin, Des Plaines homemaker: Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates village president: Vernon Laubenstein, Schaumburg Township supervisor: and Robert Grossman. Schaumburg director of public health.

The Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency is one of two groups that has applied to receive broad powers of comprehensive health planning from the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

If approved, the board will have the authority to control the expansion, relocation or construction of hospitals and nursing homes, and the purchase of new medical equipment.

It will coordinate existing healthcare services, make adjustments where services and facilities are poorly distributed and judge future health needs in suburban Cook and DuPage counties.

Two other Northwest suburban residents have been serving on the board of directors since December. They are State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; and the Rev. Leon A. Haring, minister at the First Presbyterian Church, Arlington Heights.

HEW has received applications from two competing groups for health planning responsibilities. It is expected to name the group for this area July 1.

National energy plan forum topic

Monday's program includes a general discussion of ERDA's energy pian, conservation measures, nuclear energy and an evening session on solar and advanced energy systems.

Tuesday's session will focus on coal and synthetic fuels, biological and environmental risks of energy technology, and the role of the public and industry in putting new energy technology to work.

Municipal jobs—they have their advantages

A Herald staff report

The pay is competitive, the hours and benefits are good - for thousands of local residents a municipal job close to home is an ideal situation.

Personnel managers in several Northwest suburban communities say there are far more applicants than available jobs, not only because of the high unemployment rate in the Chicago area but because a government job is convenient and secure.

"At some point people decide they just don't want to take the train down to the Loop anymore," said Greg Ford, personnel manger for Arlington Heights, where more than 330 persons are employed.

FORD SAID most applicants for village jobs have some work experience and are looking for something better. For the tradesman, it may be secur-

"Even though they make a higher hourly salary working as a union journeyman they may work 10 to 12 different jobs a year. If they work for a small contractor they may not always get their pay on time. They may just be tired of long-distance driving or not knowing where they'll work next," Ford said.

Ford said Arlington Heights salaries are competitive with local business.

"We're reasonably competitive especially with the type of fringe benefits we have to offer," he said. And in areas where salary may fall short, the distance factor may make the difference.

SALARIES IN the Northwet suburbs for the same job classification are generally within hundreds of dollars of each other.

The starting salary for general maintenance positions in public works departments ranges from $9,961 in Rolling Meadows to $11,401 in Des Plaines, with other communities falling somewhere in the middle.

The average fireman will start at a salary between $11,700 and $14,400. Policemen fare about the same.

Municipal office help, including clerk-typists and secretaries, are paid as well, if not better, than they would be in the private sector.

CLERK-TYPISTS will earn in the neighborhood of $7,000 to start with secretaries averaging $8,000 or more.

Glenn Sheets, owner of Sheets Employment Service, with offices in Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, estimated the starting salary in this area for a clerk-typist at $5,460 to $6,240 a year, while a secretary with no experience can expect to start at $5,980 to Salaries improve with experience, but Sheets said "$12,000 is about as high as they go" and that would be for an executive secretary/administrative assistant.

The top salary for a secretary in Arlington Heights is $10,600 a year. In Hoffman Estates, an administrative secretary can earn as much as $12,360. Maximum for Elk Grove Village secretaries is $12,024. Other communities are in the same range.

LOCAL MUNICIPAL jobs also are competitive with federal government salaries. John Nieminski, area manager of the Chicago area office of the U.S. Civil Service Commission said clerk-typists begin at $6,296 and receive $7,102 after a year. Secretaries start at $7,976.

Policemen working for the federal government have a salary range of $8,925 to $11,046. Nieminski said positions that used to be filled by lower paid guards now require better trained security policemen "because of all the riots and bombings and

Entrance salaries for administrative, technical and professional levels in the federal government range from $8,925 to $11,046 and top pay runs about $22,900.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES are paid according to a civil service grading scale which sets minimum and maximum salaries for a person's experience and/or education. The top grade, GS 18, is a Cabinet level job which pays $48,000.

In local government, the top salary generally goes to the village or city manager, with Arlington Heights Village Mgr. Rudy Hanson leading the

One problem in working for a municipal government is that employes receive salary increases according to the municipality's ability to pay. Wheeling gave no raises to employes for the 1976-77 fiscal year and has refused to negotiate with its unionized employes because of a lack of funds.

Daniel Larson, Buffalo Grove village manager, said raises don't follow a steady pattern because they reflect the village's ability to pay and that pay hasn't really kept up with the cost of living. Buffalo Grove employes received a 4 per cent increase for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

But, money is not everything and for many employes, particularly those who have spent years with their municipality, there are other reasons to

"I enjoy working for a municipality because it's very interesting and no two days are ever alike," said June Boston, Palatine's deputy clerk and a 22-year employe. "I suppose I could make more money in the private sector with all my experience, but it wouldn't be worth it now," said the $13,100-a-year employe.

Rain to dampen area travel plans

Northwest suburban residents planning an outing this weekend better bring along umbrellas.

Thunderstorms and cooler weather will be ushered into the area tonight from Wisconsin and rain is expected to stay in the area through Sunday. Saturday temperatures will be in the 70s. Cool weather is forecast for Sunday, but Southern Illinois will enjoy pleasant weather.

Father's Day will be cool and

Area residents driving north will find lane restrictions on the Tri-State Tollway in each direction between Willow Road and Stearn School Road.

To the south, road construction will continue to keep lanes closed on the Stevenson Expressway and motorists are ugred to seek an alternate route.

Bus rerouting studied as way to hike ridership

Route changes on Des Plaines' four intracity bus lines are being considered as one way of increasing ridership on the city transportation sys-

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee. Tuesday said changes being considered include concentrating bus trips in industrial areas during rush hour periods, and residential areas at other times. Four routes currently run through the city on a regular basis all day long.

"WE'RE JUST NOT getting the rid-ership we should," said Olen, whose committee will meet Tresday to discuss improvements to the system.

Olen said new, revised bus schedules will be distributed to the public this month. City officials have recommended eliminating Saturday and evening service, and lowering fares from 45 to 30 cents, but the RTA board must approve the recommenda-

'We hope the schedules will be easier to read and understand," Olen said. "I think that's where some of the problem has been. They've been too complicated and people just don't

A day of rioting in Soweto, a black enclave of one million inhabitants, moved to Kagiso township, about 20 miles West of Johannesburg near Krugersdorp, police said. A contingent of police reinforce-

One of three Des Plaines aldermen mayor, leaving the job of running the didacies for the acting mayor post. will be elected acting mayor Monday by the city council to replace Mayor

Herbert H. Behrel, who retires Aug. 6. Behrel will leave office nine months before the end of his fourth term as city to the alderman elected by a majority vote of the council.

Three aidermen, John E. Seitz, 7th; Charles J. Bolek, 3rd; and George Olen, 2nd, have announced their can-

The alderman selected by the council will receive Behrel's current $25,000 annual salary, pro-rated for the ninemonth period ending with the April 1977 municipal elections.

In interviews with the Herald, the three aldermen expressed their views about the role of the acting mayor, problems they expect to face and goals they wish to accomplish in the next nine months

Charles Bolek

Ald. Charles J. Bolek, 3rd, said if he is elected acting mayor he will work to carry out on-going city programs as well as continue to look for ways to save the city money.

Bolek said he thinks it is important that the city continue too move ahead with flood control, downtown redevelopment and other programs started under Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, but also believes the acting maor should initiate new programs if possible.

"I think the eight-month period in which the acting mayor will be sorving pretty much necessitates a caretaker-type approach." he said. "But I think there're always new policies that should be looked into "

BOLEK. CHAIRMAN of the city council's finance and insurance committee, said much of his attention as acting mayor will focus on the city budget and spending.

"I'm very fiscally conservative and certainly will make any cost reductions that are possible as well as maintaining a balanced budget," he said. "I will attempt to hold the line or reduce spending without any reduction in services to the city's residents.

If elected acting mayor. Bolek said he will work to ensure that a cost reducing reorganization of the city's sanitation department is completed.

Bolek, a resident of the city for 25 years, said he will continue in his job as president of Jeco Industries. Des Plaines, while serving as acting mayor, but in a reduced capacity.

HE SAID HE probably would work 20 "formal hours" a week in his city hall office, but anticipates spending another 20 to 30 hours attending meetings and working on other city busi-council make the change in the mayor's post through passage of an ordinance and not put the matter before the voters in a referendum.

"I think if it's done by ordinance and the city council sees it's not working it can be changed by council action." he said. "Whereas if it's done by referendum it can't be done that BOLEK SAID HE favors reducing the duties and pay of the city treasurer, but does not agree with some aldermen who have called for the position to be abolished.

"I wouldn't be in favor of abolishing it, but I would like to see some of the duties curtailed and shifted to the city comptroller," he said. "I would like to see the salary made commensurate with the $1,800 aldermen are paid."

A city ordinance sets the salary of the treasurer at $12,000 a year, but City Treasurer Thomas Mahon only has accepted $6,000 a year since being elected to the post in 1973.

George Olen

Ald. George F. Olen, 2nd, said as acting mayor he would be a "tough administrator" who would work to streamline the city government and make sure all employes "pull their weight."

Olen said he believes Mayor Herbert H. Behrel's administration of the city has been "somewhat loose" in the last year and that the city needs a strong administrator to serve as acting mayor.

"I think things are going to have to change," he said "I think the acting mayor has to take an active role in administering the department heads to eliminate some of the inefficiencies and inequities.

"I feel a lot of city employes are not pulling their weight right now," he said. "When you walk into city hall, you see secretaries knitting or reading newspapers at their desks, and some of the employes are taking long coffee breaks.'

HE SAID as acting mayor he also would work to streamline the city's work force to cut costs. Although he would not discuss specifics, he said he might support a system to pool secretaries and consolidate some jobs.

"I don't think that every department head needs his own secretary," Olen said. "I think a secretary can work for more than one person."

He said although he feels some administrative changes are needed, he believes the acting mayor should work to carry out many of the programs started under Behrel.

"I have no intention of going in there and changing the whole operation on my own for an eight-month period," he said

Olen, a resident of the city for 12 years, said he would retain his present job while serving as acting mayor, adding that he will not be a candidate for mayor in the April 1977 municipal election.

"I believe the acting mayor's job will be a full-time job," he said. "I'm not going to let things sit on my desk. The job is going to get done."

Olen said that while he is in favor of the city changing to a part-time mayor with a full-time city manager, he does not think residents support that

"My constituents are adamently opposed to a city manager, part-time mayor form of government," he said. "I think if the city council has enough guts, it will change it by ordinance because a referendum is never going to fly, at least in the 2nd Ward.'

Olen said the city treasurer's job is "useless" and believes its salary should be cut to $100 a month, with most of the treasurer's duties being assumed by the city comptroller.

If elected acting mayor, Ald, John E Seitz, 7th, said he will review the city's staffing needs and push for passage of a comprehensive land-use

Seitz, the first of three aldermen to announce his candidacy for the position, said the acting mayor "should basically follow the policies of Mayor (Herbert) Behrel because he was elected by the people. The acting mayor is not."

However, he said he will ask for a complete organization chart and job description for every city employe as a step toward improving staff efficiency, and help expedite completion of a land-use and development strategy for the city.

"With an organizational chart and job description, everybody's going to have a better understanding of relationships on the job." said Seitz. "If we have a better idea of staffing levels, we might find a way to stream-line the government."

SEITZ, A 14-YEAR resident of Des Plaines, sald the city has been "talking for nine years" about a comprehensive land-use plan for Des Plaines. "Now we've begun work on it, but I would push them along a little. We've got some undeveloped areas and this plan is long overdue.'

John E.

Seitz said he will take a leave of absence from his teaching duties at Oakton Community College and will work at the job full-time. He said he will continue his public relations business on his own time. "I don't expect that to interfere with being mayor,"

Seitz said the acting mayor must be willing to put in whatever time is necessary to do the job. "You can't run a $15.2 million organization part time. Someone has to coordinate the department heads.'

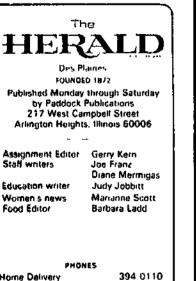

He said the decision about whether to continue with a full-time mayor system "should be left up to the vot-"We elected a full-time mayor and that's what the people expect," Seitz said. "We could change things with an ordinance so we have a parttime mayor and a full-time administrative assistant, but I don't think that's the way to do it. The voters

Northwest suburban residents planning an outing this weekend better bring along umbrellas.

Thunderstorms and cooler weather will be ushered into the area tonight from Wisconsin and rain is expected to stay in the area through Sunday. Saturday temperatures will be in the 70s. Cool weather is forecast for Sunday, but Southern Illinois will enjoy pleasant weather.

Father's Day will be cool and cloudy.

Area residents driving north will find lane restrictions on the Tri-State Tollway in each direction between Willow Road and Stearn School Road.

To the south, road construction will continue to keep lanes closed on the Stevenson Expressway and motorists are ugred to seek an alternate route.

Salary talks hurt by union: Harper

by DIANE GRANAT

The intervention of a national teachers' union representative in the recent contract negotiations dispute at Harper College "blocked real progress by the faculty and the board for months," the Harper Board of Trustees said in a statement released Thursday.

The board said Norman Swenson of the American Federation of Teachers, a national teachers' union with which the Harper faculty recently affiliated, "injected Chicago-style union politics into what was essentially a local prob-

Negotiations between the board and faculty ended Monday when a tentative, agreement was signed fololwing a five-month court battle.

THE AGREEMENT grants a $1,375 pay raise to most faculty members and extends the board's recognition of the faculty senate as the bargaining agent for the 202 full-time faculty members at Harper.

Michael Bartos, chief faculty ne gotiator, said Swenson and the AFT did not become involved in contract talks until the board was ordered back to the bargaining table May 20.

"It is certainly unfair to charge the AFT with hindering negotiations," Bartos said

"OUR IMPRESSION is that all of these matters have been settled amicably. Instead of healing wounds, I see the board driving a deeper wedge between the faculty and the board," Bartos said.

The board also said in its statement that it is not bound by the faculty's referendum supporting affiliation with the AFT. "We haven't been put in the position of having to recognize the AFT because an argreemnt was signed with the faculty senate," said Board Chairman Shirley Munson, who presented the board's position Thurs-

Mrs. Munson said the board did not state its position on the contract dispute earlier because board members were threatened with contempot of court citations if they discussed negotiation matters.

Mrs. Munson said the board spent about $20,000 on legal fees "since we were brought into court by the faculty senate and we had no choice but to defend ourselves.'

CONTRACT TALKS between the board and faculty began early this year but ended abruptly in April when the board declared negotiations had ended. The board then voted teacher a $1,275 raise and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining

Negotiations resumed May 20 when Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen ordered the board to negotiate on a daily basis until June 1, when a recognition agreement with the senate expired. The board appealed Judge Cohen's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court and the Illinois Supreme Court but both courts refused to overturn the

The plan commission postponed the hearing because the case is pending in the appellate court and the owner of the property is out of town and could not be present.

The plan commission also continued hearings to July 8 on the proposed rezoning of a lot on the north side of Roberts Road, east of Wolf Road. The rezoning would allow construction of a house on a quarter-acre lot. Current 70ning requires a minimum half-acre

Signup June 24 for childhood center

Registration for the Early Childhood Center will be held June 24 from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and July 9 from 9:30 a.m. to noon at Congregation Beth Judea in Long Grove.

The Early Childhood Center will service the needs of young children in Wheeling, Northbrook. Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove.

Prospect Heights residents who live near the parcel objected to the proposed rezoning because they have minimum half-acre lots.

THE PLAN COMMISSION continued the hearing to give an attorney, representing the property owner, time to answer to the objections.

The plan commission made recommendations on several other zoning requests that will comply with Wheel-mg's new comprehensive land plan The rezoning requests are subject to village board approval.

The plan commission recommended

the village board: • Deny a request to rezone a 5-acre parcel on east Schoenbeck Road, south of Anthony Street, from halfacre to slightly less than quarter-acre lots for the construction of homes.

• Approve a request to rezone a one-acre parcel on the north side of Dundee Road, across from St. Joseph the Worker Church, from business to general office use.

Parks vow aid in land gift lawsuits

Wheeling Park District officials Thursday said they are prepared to intervene in any lawsuits contesting a proposed ordinance requiring developers to make land and cash donations to schools and park districts.

In a letter to village officials, Park District Atty. Roger Bjorvik said the park district will enter into an agreement with the village and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist 21 to take part in lawsuits "testing the constitutionality" of the ordinance.

Park Supt. David Phillips said park officials will stick with an earlier decision not to assume full cost of lawsuits resulting from the ordinance He said it is "not legal and not desirable" for the park board to assume total financial responsibility for the lawsuits

THE PROPOSED ordinance would require developers to donate 5.5 acres for recreational purposes for every 1,000 persons brought into the village. The ordinance also would require eash or land donations to school districts based on the number of pupils who would live in the new devel-

Wheeling school and park officials had earlier said they would be willing to pay legal fees on any lawsuit up to only the value of the property involved. The village wants assurances that the districts will support legal battles, no matter what the cost

Village Atty John Burke has told village trustees they should be prepared for lawsuits if the ordinance is approved

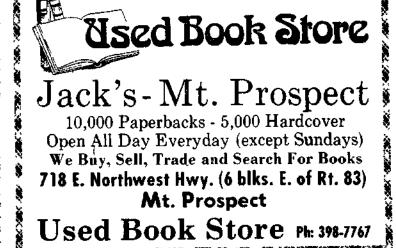

A similar ordinance passed by the City of Naperville is being challenged by developers in the 2nd Dist. Illinois Appellate Court, Elgin.

Village trustees previously have said they would drop plans for the ordinance unless park and school districts agreed to pay any resulting legal fees The board later asked Burke to contact local park and school officials to see if a compromise can be

Mrs. Munson said the board broke off negotiations in April because the faculty wanted to negotiate salary ranges and the board said it was not a "Salary ranges have to do with the governance of the college" and that is the responsibility of the board, she said.

In December, the board established maximums alaries of $18,250 for instructors, $21,000 for assistant professors, $24,140 for associate professors and $27,760 for professors.

The agreement signed Monday, which still has to be ratified by the faculty and board, grants a $1,375 raise to all faculty members except those whose increased salary will exceed the maximum set for their job.

Trustees agreed to let Cambora time to the Civil Defense organization."

"I'm going through a reorganization plan right now. I'm in the middle of appointing deputy directors for the various functions," he said.

Cambora, a security guard for Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, was named Civil Defense director last month. He succeeds Robert Buerger, who resigned as Civil Defense director in October.

Cambora was previously manager of employe services at Stewart Warner Corp., Chicago, where he set up a program of industrial Civil Defense. He also has taken part in a Civil Defense training program at Fort Gor-

by BILL HURLEY A news analysis

Residents of the Mill Creek subdivision have won another victory in their battle to control land use in a vacant lot behind their homes

The plan commission Monday voted unanimously against a request by Grand Spaulding Dodge to expand its dealership on 85 acres along Dundee Road near Old Arlington Heights Road The final decision is now left to the village board

The board earlier this year supported the homeowners by refusing proposals for commercial development and construction of three-story apartment buildings on the site

Homeowners say they were told by subdivision developers when they bought their land that the vacant lot would be used for construction of twostory apartment buildings They say they will oppose any other proposals far, the village has supported

Arguments given Monday at the public hearing by four residents and several commissioners include · Commercial expansion into the area would disrupt the neighborhood

The inside story

ership would reduce his property tax bill He also said he favored bringing business into Buffalo Grove simply because it makes shopping easier when things are closer

Comr Howard Mendenhall said the vote reflects a commission policy to conform with the master zoning plan unless there is an advantageous "trade off"

'What it really amounts to is weighing the value of this particular project to see if it is good enough to run the risk of alienating residents," he said The Grand Spaulding proposal was just "too difficult to swallow," said

MENDENHALL SAID the village master plan calls for allowing commercial development in areas previously zoned commercial, but to maintain residential zonings

The effect such a policy will have on business development in Buffalo Grove is minimal, according to Jackie Brinn, Chamber of Commerce presi-

Ms Brinn said she agrees with the recommendation against Grand Spaulding expansion.

"I go along with the village that we need to keep some beauty there," she said "I don't want to see Dundee Road anyone wants it to become the car COMMISSION MEMBERS also expressed concern ovr the proposed park donation. Grand Spaulding is offering to donate about four acres behind heades along Crofton Ln. to serve as a buffer with the commercial land.

Mendenhall said, "with a fast road on one side and lack of access," the park might never be used and simply become a vacant lot.

Parks Director Stanley Crosland said the site would not be large enough and is too close to Crofton Lane homes to erect tennis courts or a baseball diamond. He said the parks would primarily be designed for such activities as kite flying or pick-up soccer games.

"I don't see hundreds of people occupying the area every night as we have in other parks designed for that purpose," he said.

Betty Reid, 990 Crofton Ln., said the residents have opposed the three proposed developments of the land this year because they did not conform with what they were told would be built there when they moved into the

Rain to dampen area travel plans

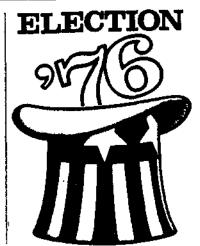

Northwest suburban residents planning an outing this weekend better bring along umbrellas.

Thunderstorms and cooler weather will be ushered into the area tonight from Wisconsin and rain is expected to stay in the area through Sunday. Saturday temperatures will be in the 70s. Cool weather is forecast for Sunday, but Southern Illinois will enjoy pleasant weather.

Father's Day will be cool and cloudy.

Area residents driving north will find lane restrictions on the Tri-State Tollway in each direction between Willow Road and Stearn School Road.

To the south, road construction will continue to keep lanes closed on the Stevenson Expressway and motorists are ugred to seek an alternate route.

Patrolman asks court to settle job suspension

by TOM VON MALDER

Elk Grove Village Patrolman William Jaworski, relieved from active duty since the 1975 shooting of a Mount Prospect man, hopes the Cook County Circuit Court hearing today will decide if he will be reinstated.

"I want this thing settled," Jaworski told The Herald Thursday. "I want them to either put me back to work or bring me up on departmental charges before the fire and police commission.'

Jaworski, upset at the nearly 15 months of forced inactivity, has filed suit against the village, with Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek and Police Chief Harry P. Jenkins named codefendants.

JAWORSKI. 33, has continued to draw his $1,328 monthly salary despite having been relieved of duty shortly after he allegedly shot Timothy Engelson. 19, of 308 Hi-Lusi Ave., Mount

Mental-aid cash for center may not be available

The Citizens' Advisory Committee of the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health has approved a federal construction grant application for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, but money may not be available.

Prospect, in the stomach during the investigation of a predawn traffic accident. During the April 5, 1975 incident, Jaworski, Engelson, and five companions allegedly were involved in a scuffle.

Engelson then filed a $1 million lawsuit charging Jaworski with battery, negligence and willful and want-conduct. Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert has delayed his decision on whether Jaworski should be reinstated or brought up on departmental charges because of the entanglement with the civil suit.

The village is continually delaying this," Jaworski said. "Mr. Hofert has continually delayed this case, asking for a couple of continuances.

'Needless to say, I want this whole thing settled so I can live a normal lifestyle. It has my wife upset, too,' Jaworski said.

JAWORSKI SAID he would "welcome the opportunity to appear before the fire and police commission." He said it was last July that the state's attorney's office, after its investigation, decided not to file criminal charges against him. An independent witness corroborated much of Jaworski's statement of what happened in the incident, the office said.

S. Africa riots worst in 16 years

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Black rioters, enraged by police shoooting school children, burned and looted the black enclave of Soweto Thursday then ransacked another black township, setting fire to shops. Police reinforcements moved in armored cars to crush the worst violence in South Africa in 16 years.

Police said at least 32 persons were killed in two days of rioting sparked by police firing into a crowd of demonstrating schoolchildren. Another 250 persons were wounded, 69 of them with bullets, police said.

A day of rioting in Soweto, a black enclave of one million inhabitants, moved to Kagiso township, about 20 miles West of Johannesburg near Krugersdorp, police said.

A contingent of police reinforcements rushed to the area where rampaging blacks set fire to shops and beer halls and began smashing windows and looting other stores.

The violence was the worst in South Africa since 1960 when police killed 69 black rioters in one afternoon in Sharpeville.

"It's different, that's for sure," said manger Joe Kornacker, who took over the station with a partner about two months ago.

Booth said the design "was an exploration of the gas station of the future, but more than that. The whole commercial strip concept should be low-key, more human."

HE SAID the station was an attempt to market goods in a manner free of the "aggressiveness" of neon signs. "Is there a better way to do it? One more compatible with the natural surroundings?" he asked.

Dist. 54 teacher pact gets complete board approval

A teacher contract effective in September was unanimously approved Thursday by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The hoard's ratification was the last step in making the contract final. The teachers voted overwhelmingly to accept the contract last Friday.

"Although we (the board and the union) are considered adversaries at the negotiating table. I was particularly pleased with the mutual respect shown and the friendly atmosphere during negotiations," said Esther Karras, chairman of the board's negotaition team.

"Both teams were determined to avoid a repeat performance of the confrontation that occurred last year. It is significant to note that these negotiations were completed in just six meetings. Both teams proved it can be done," she said.

Sherry Reynolds resigned from the Schaumburg Dist. 54 Board of Educa-

"I sought election to this board because of my commitment to sound and reasonable policy making, and because of my belief in the system of checks and balances through scrutiny and investigation so necessary to public administration. I feel great regret in no longer being able to act on these commitments," Ms. Reynoids said.

"I BELIEVE WE have made progress in several key areas: more careful scrutiny of finances, increased accountability in administration and curriculum and broadening our educational program to encourage all children to pursue their interest free from the cultural stereotypes which no longer fit the world in which we live,"

Negotiations between the board and faculty ended Monday when a tentative, agreement was signed following a five-month court battle.

Michael Bartos, chief faculty negotiator, said Swenson and the AFT did not become involved in contract talks until the board was ordered back to the bargaining table May 20.

"It is certainly unfair to charge the AFT with hindering negotiations,"

"OUR IMPRESSION is that all of these matters have been settled amicably. Instead of healing wounds, I see the board driving a deeper wedge between the faculty and the board,"

The board also said in its statement that it is not bound by the faculty's referendum supporting affiliation with the AFT. The board appealed Judge Cohen's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court and the Illinois Supreme Court but both courts refused to overturn the lower court ruling.

The agreement signed Monday, which still has to be ratified by the faculty and board, grants a $1,375 raise to all faculty members except those whose increased salary will exceed the maximum set for their job.

BLUE JEANS, T-shirts and walking boots are just about all the clothes he will take on a long hike like this one. three older brothers and his work as a member of the high school track team have prepared him for the trip. His mother, Evelyn Meine, manager of special services for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, is behind Curt "all the way," he said. At first, Curt hopes to walk 10 to 15 miles each day, building himself up to an average 25 miles a day. He will head west through the farms of Iowa, through the plains of Nebraska, over the mountains of Wyoming and through Oregon to the Pacific Ocean where he plans to cool his feet off once he has walked the full route.

"I'm not sure just what I'll do when I get there. I want to make it first," he said. "I'll probably take a plane home just in time to celebrate my birthday in November.

THINGS THAT CURT has been warned against include rattlesnakes on hot, deserted roads and blisters forming on his feet.

But none of it really frightens the young pioneer.

"This is my first time West, and if I'm careful, I'll be alright," Curt said. "I'm just so excited about going, it's going to be a great experience. I plan to log every minute of it in a journal," he said.

Sherry Reynolds resigned from the Schaumburg Dist. 54 Board of Education Thursday night.

Ms. Reynolds, 282 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates, said she was resigning to move with her family to Williamsport,

"I sought election to this board because of my commitment to sound and reasonable policy making, and because of my belief in the system of checks and balances through scrutiny and investigation so necessary to public administration. I feel great regret in no longer being able to act on these commitments," Ms. Reynolds said.

"I BELIEVE WE have made progress in several key areas: more careful scrutiny of finances, increased accountability in administration and curriculum and broadening our educational program to encourage all children to pursue their interest free from the cultural stereotypes which no longer fit the world in which we live. she said.

Community residents may apply for the open board position at the district office, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

A teacher contract effective in September was unanimously approved Thursday by the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

The board's ratification was the last step in making the contract final. The teachers voted overwhelmingly to accept the contract last Friday.

"Although we (the board and the union) are considered adversaries at the negotiating table, I was particularly pleased with the mutual respect shown and the friendly atmosphere during negotiations," said Esther Karras, chairman of the board's negotaition team.

"Both teams were determined to avoid a repeat performance of the confrontation that occurred last year. It is significant to note that these negotiations were completed in just six meetings. Both teams proved it can

WINGED WONDER of a service station is part of a book and display on Chicago architecture. The station, Rand and Elmhurst roads in Mount Prospect, was designed by Laurence Booth and has been the recipient of awards since its construction in 1972.

Architects want their buildings and designs to make statements: essays in brick and steel; form and function in a usable, enduring art form. But does architect Laurence Booth's Arco service station, Elm-

THE SERVICE STATION is part of a display and book, "Chicago Architects," that was put together by a group of Chicago architects who are out to prove Chicago has more to offer than just Mies van der Rohe's stark girder-and-panel skyscrapers. The display is now featured in the Chicago Time-Life Building. The station, built in 1972, was honored that year with a Distinguished Building Award given by the Chicago chapter of the

The station challenges description with its three decks sweeping over pumping islands that are incorporated into the supports. At the core is a glass-enclosed cylinder for the office.

"It's different, that's for sure," said manger Joe Kornacker, who took over the station with a partner about two months ago. Booth said the design "was an exploration of the gas station of the future, but more than that. The whole commercial strip concept should be low-key, more human." HE SAID the station was an attempt to market goods in a man-

Sludge pile slips past village

Hoffman Estates' first shipment of Nu-Earth, all 46 tons of it, has vanished.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District Friday delivered to the village three loads of Nu-Earth - decomposed sludge - to be used as fertilizer. Two loads were dumped in the middle of Pembroke Avenue, a deadend street.

"It was supposed to be dumped in a special lot off of Pembroke Avenue, off Hassell Road," said Joan Jarzemsky, environmental commission

By the time officials learned the loads had been delivered, the Nu-Earth disappeared.

"We're trying to find out what happened to it," Mrs. Jarzemsky said. "All we can do is get another load and hope someone won't steal that,"

The environmental commission has planned the opening of the Nu-Earth site for several months. The material is to be distributed from the site free

The third load, delivered to the fire department's 1700 Moon Lake Blvd. station for the firemen's home-garadening use, is not for public distribution.

Granucci has requested a variation which will allow him to have a 20-foot front yard setback instead of the 30foot front yard setback required by ordinance.

Trustees named to site panel on Septemberfest

Schaumburg trustees Thursday night took the first step in naming two board members to a community committee that will search for a permanent home for the village's Septemberfest celebration.

The board, meeting in committee with members of the Schaumburg Park District, recommended appointment of trustees Al Larson and Edward Olsen to the new group. The committee eventually will include members of other community organizations in addition to representatives of the two boards.

Formal approval of the selections will be considered at the village board meeting Tuesday.

The joint committee meeting was necessary after a dispute arose between the two groups over the future of Civic Park? Sharon Lane and Civic Drive. In April, the village had agreed to deed a swimming pool and tennis courts at the park to the district. The property has been leased by the park district for 13 years.

HOWEVER, THE trustees postponed the move in May because of a misunderstanding of the use of a park sitt in the future for Septemberfest, the village's annual Labor Day celebration. Some trustees feared the park district might refuse the village a specific site for the event if the deed resolution passed.

Paul Derda, director of parks and recreation, said Thursday the park district never intended to deny the festival a site. He said, however, that growing maintenance and repair costs also takes preference over the Elk Grove-Schaumburg application because its "need" ranking - based in part on the poverty level - is higher.

Anderson said there is a possibility other federal funds could be found for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg project.

The local agency sought $264,000 to help build a $660,000 permanent facility at the corner of Nerge and Rohlwing roads on two acres donated by Elk Grove Village and SBL Corp. The center now operates out of three rented locations in Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg.

"We will be contacting the federal government as soon as possible to see whether any other funding is possible, although we are not optimistic we will find anything," Anderson said.

GEORGE T. SPEES, president of the local mental health center board, was more optimistic than Anderson.

"I really think we can get the money but we'll have to work at it." spees said Thursday, "Our effort now will be to contact people on the federal level as it is out of the state's hands."

Spees said the board was told there may be other federal money in the same grant entitlement program designated for other areas or states which may not have been used.

Anderson said both the Elk Grove-Schaumburg and Garfield Park grant applications were forwarded to the regional office of the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare which will make the final decision on the grant award in September.

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center will be unable to build its new facility if it does not obtain the federal funds. Pledges of $100,000 from each township for the building fund are revocable if the federal grants are not obtained.

Members of the city public works assistant superintendent of public works, to work with James Muldowney, city engineer, to prepare a sprinkling restriction ordinance.

"It looks as if we will be forced into adopting an ordinance in an attempt to control water use in the hot summer months." Ald. John Rock, 3rd. said Thursday.

Rock, a member of the committee, said the panel plans this month to recommend the city adopt an ordinance establishing sprinkling times or dates. MARTIN SAID an ordinance is necessary. "However, I believe that the only truly effective method of water. conservation is to enlist residents' vol-

Police urge law to fine parents for vandalism

An antivandalism ordinance designed to "hurt parents in the pocket book," has been proposed by the Rolling Meadows Police Dept. for action by the city council

"Hurt them in the pocketbooks," Capt. Evans said, urging the committee recommend the city council adopt a vandalism ordinance placing reponsibility on parents. "IT'S TIME WE place the responsibility on parents' shoulders. Perhaps we need to force them to watch or be responsible for their children's actions." Evans said.

"We don't know if an antivandalism ordinance adopted by our city will hold up in a higher court, but we do know we would have better enforcement with local ordinances." Evans

Ald. Daniel Weber, 4th, was concerned that the proposed antivandalism ordinance "would lead to a vigilante type of control."

Evans told him that the ordinance proposed is similar to those adopted by other municipalities and imposes strict fines for juvenile vandalism but does not call for any citizen vigilante

THE AGREEMENT grants a $1,375 pay raise to most faculty members and extends the board's recognition of the faculty senate as the bargaining agent for the 202 full-time faculty members at Harper.

Swenson, president of the Cook County Colleges Teachers Union, said the board's charges are "completely unfounded."

Michael Bartos, chief faculty negotiator, said Swenson and the AFT did not become involved in contract talks until the board was ordered back to the bargaining table May 20.

"It is certainly unfair to charge the AFT with hindering negotiations," Bartos said

"OUR IMPRESSION is that all of these matters have been settled amicably. Instead of healing wounds, I see the board driving a deeper wedge between the faculty and the board,' Bartos said.

The board also said in its statement that it is not bound by the faculty's referendum supporting affiliation with the AFT. "We haven't been put in the position of having to recognize the AFT because an argreemnt was signed with the faculty senate," said Board Chairman Shirley Munson, who presented the board's position Thurs-

Mrs. Munson said the board did not state its position on the contract dispute earlier because board members were threatened with contempot of court citations if they discussed negotiation matters.

Mrs. Munson said the board spent about $20,000 on legal fees "since we were brought into court by the faculty senate and we had no choice but to defend ourselves.'

Eagle Park pool dirty, neighbors say

by LUISA GINNETTI

The new outdoor pool at Eagle Park may be a welcome summer relief for sunbathers and swimmers but for the Harold Simons family and their neighbors the facility is proving to be every bit the nuisance they feared.

"It's noisy, dirty and disruptive, said Mrs. Simons, whose 15-year-old home lies less than 30 feet north of the pool. "It's hard to say how bad it is because we haven't had a full weekend yet, but it has been noisy and very dirty," she said.

The Simons, 1501 N. Oak St., were among dozens of residents bordering the Home Avenue-Oak Street park who waged a losing battle with the Palatine Park District to get the pool eliminated from or at least moved to a different spot on the six-acre park

THE POOL IS part of a planned $480,000 project which will also include a baseball diamond, a bathhouse and tennis courts. The pool opened Monday, two days behind schedule because of a construction delay caused by late delivery of aluminum piping.

Residents in the area surrounding the pool, which is located in the former boundaries of the Palatine Rural Park District, attempted to block construction of the facility because they said it would create increased noise, traffic and flooding in the area.

The residents had considered seeking an injunction against the park district earlier this year to halt the project, but the effort was later abandoned. Residents said they would await the pool's completion before deciding on any further steps.

For the Simons family, the pool has been so disturbing that Mrs. Simons said the family is considering moving. "I can't open the windows or have the shades up during the day because it is so dirty," she said. "We are not comfortable. The other night one of my children got frightened when she saw someone looking in the window."

MRS. SIMONS said the problem began during construction of the pool, with curious children running through her backyard to the pool site. "We have had vandalism, and things have taken from the said.

The problems have been reported to the park district, she said, but although officials have been courteous, the problems remain.

She said a wooden stockade fence built between the pool and her home has helped the situation, but she adds that the family would have preferred the barrier stretch across the entire lot rather than just the width of the

"I don't want to be forced out of my house. We have lovely neighbors and my husband and I have lived in Palatine all our lives," she said. "The question is where would we go."

MRS. SIMONS said she believes the family would have a difficult time selling the house because of its proximity to the pool. The park district earlier this year said it would consider purchasing the house from the Simons if it is put on the market and they are unable to sell it. However, Mrs. Simons said the family never received a written commitment from the park district.

"The other neighbors are not as affected as we are but they're just as unhappy," Mrs. Simons said.

Youth to see country...foot by foot

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Curt Meine, 17. of Maine Township, is a young man who is leaving today to see all the country he can - on foot and with a lot of spirit.

He will begin a 2,500-mile journey from the Iowa town of Bellevue on the Mississippi River, where his mother will drive.

Four months from now, if his feet hold up, he'll end his hike in Florence, Ore., at the edge of the Pacific Ocean.

Meine, 8928 Robin Dr., says he is taking the long walk "because I want to see the world and meet different

"IT'S A POST-HIGH school graduation urge," said the National Merit Scholar and former Maine East High School track star.

But Curt said he wants to make the trip meaningful to more people than just himself. So, he has decided to take pledges to be paid on the completion of his hike to support UNICEF (the United Nations Children's Fund).

The Greater Chicago Area Committee for UNICEF is sponsoring Curt's trip and coordinating the pledges, which still can be made by calling 372-5359 or writing UNICEF at 5 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago 60602.

More than $900 has been pledged to the hike, and pledges as small as three-fifths of a cent per mile have been made, Curt said.

UNICEF, a nonprofit, international organization, will use the money to help children in underdeveloped countries throughout the world.

CURT SAID HE got the idea for his hike from reading about other people who have walked across the United He says he is one person who took it to heart when someone suggested, "Go West, young man." And what essentials do you cram into a 40-pound back pack that will sustain you for four months on the Well, first and foremost is a tent, small stove and sleeping bag. Then, there's matches, clothes, soap and towel and a razor. There is two or three day's supply of food, in case of emergency and enough money to buy what you need along the way, he said. "But, I'm hoping that farmers and ranchers along the way will invite me home for dinner," Curt said. BLUE JEANS, T-shirts and walking boots are just about all the clothes he will take on a long hike like this one, he said.

Childhood days of camping with his three older brothers and his work as a member of the high school track team have prepared him for the trip. His mother, Evelyn Meine, manager of special services for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, is behind Curt "all the way," he said.

At first, Curt hopes to walk 10 to 15 miles each day, building himself up to an average 25 miles a day. He will head west through the farms of Iowa, through the plains of Nebraska, over the mountains of Wyoming and through Oregon to the Pacific Ocean where he plans to cool his feet off once he has walked the full route.

"I'm not sure just what I'll do when I get there. I want to make it first," he said. "I'll probably take a plane home just in time to celebrate my birthday in November.

THINGS THAT CURT has been agamst include on hot, deserted roads and blisters forming on his feet.

But none of it really frightens the young pioneer. 'This is my first time West, and if I'm careful, I'll be alright," Curt said. "I'm just so excited about going, it's going to be a great experience. I plan to log every minute of it in a journal," he said.

Zoners OK parking plan for driver test station

Parking plans for a long-awaited Northwest suburban driver testing station have been approved by Schaumburg's zoning board of appeals and will be sent to the village board for approval.

Zoning committee members decided that parking needs for the facility, which will open at 1231 E. Golf Rd. in the Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, would not overcrowd the existing parking lot at the center even if space currently vacant became occupied.

Representatives of the secretary of state's office were unavailable for comment Thursday about how soon the new facility would open after village approval. Officials have said the center could open next month.

The committee estimated that the facility would serve between 600 and 700 persons each day, with not more than 50 persons at any one time. The center also would require parking spaces for about 35 to 40 employes, according to the committee.

BASED ON those figures, the testing facility would use about 84 parking spaces at any one time. But even upon full rental of existing vacant store spaces, committee members

Village weighs new position of police commander

Palatine village officials are considering an ordinance to create a new level of command within the police department and give limited powers of hiring and firing to the chief.

Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said the proposed law, now in the draft stage, would establish a rank of "commander" second to the police chief. Under the law, the chief would have the power to hire or fire the four or five commanders proposed, Harwig said. The village police and fire commission now has sole hiring and firing

The proposed law, Harwig said, 'would provide a mechanism by which the administrative load of a department of this size can be spread more evenly across the department and draw expertise from within the department.'

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — Black Police said at least 32 persons were killed in two days of rioting sparked by police firing into a crowd of demonstrating schoolchildren. Another 250 persons were wounded, 69 of them with bullets, police said.

> A day of rioting in Soweto, a black enclave of one million inhabitants, moved to Kagiso township, about 20 miles West of Johannesburg near Krugersdorp, police said. A contingent of police reinforce> ments rushed to the area where rampaging blacks set fire to shops and beer halls and began smashing windows and looting other stores. The violence was the worst in South of whites rode into a peaceful protest march by whites and blacks and scattered them with "chains, broken bottles and clubs," according to witnesses.

The march to city hall by a group of about 1,000 white students of the University of the Witwatersrand and black supporters was to protest police action in Soweto in opening fire into a crowd of demonstrating black school-

"It is certainly unfair to charge the AFT with hindering negotiations,"

The board also said in its statement tha. it is not bound by the faculty's referendum supporting affiliation with the AFT. Negotiations resumed May 20 when Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen ordered the board to negotiate on a daily basis until June 1, when a recognition agreement with the senate expired.

The board appealed Judge Cohen's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court and the Illinois Supreme Court but both courts relused to overturn the lower court ruling.

Bank terminals to operate pending high court ruling

Electronic banking terminals, under fire as branch banks, can remain in operation while the issue is appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The decision was handed down by the Federal Appeals Court which found the terminals, operated by the First National Bank of Chicago and the Continental Bank, were branch banks and therefore illegal in Illinois.

The First National Bank has a terminal in the Evergreen Court shopping center in Arlington Heights.

U.S. District Court Judge Hubert F. Will had ruled originally that the terminals did not violate the state ban on brinch banks as long as they did not accept account deposits.

The appeals court, however, found the terminals' other functions, making account withdrawals and checking on balances, also qualified them as branches.

The appeals court said the terminals could continue operating until the Supreme Court issues the final ruling on the matter.

The First National's terminal had been part of its community office program. The offices had been challenged as violations of the branch banking laws, and the bank voluntarily closed them as part of an out of court settlement last month, although the terminals remained in operation.

County to probe quality of curve on Long Grove

An inspector from the Cook County Highway Dept. will investigate a sharp curve on a poorly lighted and heavily traveled section of Long Grove Road just off Rand Road in Palatine Township which has figured in two recent accidents.

Township Highway Comr. Robert Bergman wrote the county after having received complaints from residents whose homes border the curse. Recently, a Palatine squad car and an empty school bus have swerved off the curve into residents' backyards crushing trees, breaking a stone walk and scattering cut logs. No one was injured in either accident. The curve is not protected by a guard rail.

If the county inspector advises the township to install a guard rail or some other kind of barrier, the township will do so without waiting for written confirmation, Bergman said. Funds for installing an estimated 100 feet of guard railing would come from the township's road and bridge fund.

Bergman said a guard rail "may not be the answer" because its effect can be to "spin the car around into the other lane of traffic." Barriers or sand bags placed on the county rightof-way bordering homeowners' property may also be considered.

Long Grove Road is the only access to U.S. Rte. 12 for the 212-unit Rand Grove apartment complex. Additional traffic is being diverted to the road while a bridge is built on Laurel Drive in Pinehurst Manor.

Zoners OK parking plan for driver test station

Parking plans for a long-awaited condluded the Woodfield Commons Northwest suburban driver testing station have been approved by Schaumburg's zoning board of appeals and will be sent to the village board for approval.

Zoning committee members decided that parking needs for the facility. which will open at 1231 E. Golf Rd. in the Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, would not overcrowd the existing parking lot at the center even if space currently vacant became occupied.

Representatives of the secretary of state's office were unavailable for comment Thursday about how soon the new facility would open after village approval. Officials have said the center could open next month.

The committee estimated that the facility would serve between 600 and 700 persons each day, with not more than 50 persons at any one time. The center also would require parking spaces for about 35 to 40 employes, according to the committee.

BASED ON those figures, the testing facility would use about 84 parking spaces at any one time. But even upon full rental of existing vacant store spaces, committee members

South African violence reported worst in years

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) - Black rioters, enraged by police shooting school children, burned and looted the black enclave of Soweto Thursday then ransacked another black township, setting fire to shops. Police reinforcements moved in armored cars to crush the worst violence in South Africa in 16 years.

Police said at least 32 persons were killed in two days of rioting sparked by police firing into a crowd of demonstrating schoolchildren. Another 250 persons were wounded, 69 of them with bullets, police said.

A day of rioting in Soweto, a black enclave of one million inhabitants, moved to Kagiso township, about 20 miles West of Johannesburg near Krugersdorp, police said.

A contingent of police reinforcements rushed to the area where rampaging blacks set fire to shops and beer halls and began smashing windows and looting other stores.

"It's different, that's for sure," said manger Joe Kornacker, who took over the station with a partner about two months ago. Booth said the design "was an exploration of the gas station of the future, but more than that. The whole commercial strip concept should be low-key, more human." HE SAID the station was an attempt to market goods in a manner free of the "aggressiveness" of neon signs.

"Is there a better way to do it? One more compatible with the natural surroundings?" he asked.

The station was a statement of "restraining greed" while "trying

County board hearings on the proposal are scheduled for 2 p m Monday in the County Building, 118 N Clark St , Chicago.

UNDER DUNNE'S proposal, the head tax would generate $54 million in new revenue, $36 million of which would be given to municipalities, with $18 million going to the county. Mount Prospect would receive an estimated $236,500 from the new tax.

Schlaver cited figures showing how the proposed tax would affect the village's largest employer, Multigraphies Division of AM Corp., 1800 Central Rd. The chamber director said the tax would cost Multigraphics almost $5,000 a month for its 1,600 em-

by DIANE GRANAT

The intervention of a national teachers' union representative in the recent contract negotiations dispute at Harper College "blocked real progress by the faculty and the board for months." the Harper Board of Trustees said in a statement released Thursday.

The board said Norman Swenson of the American Federation of Teachers, a national teachers' union with which the Harper faculty recently affiliated, "injected Chicago-style union politics into what was essentially a local prob-

Negotiations between the board and faculty ended Monday when a tentative, agreement was signed following a five-month court battle.

THE AGREEMENT grants a $1,375 pay raise to most faculty members and extends the board's recognition of the faculty senate as the bargaining agent for the 202 full-time faculty members at Harper.

Swenson, president of the Cook County Colleges Teachers Union, said the board's charges are "completely unfounded.

Michael Bartos, chief faculty negotiator, sald Swenson and the AFT dld not become involved in contract talks until the board was ordered back to the bargaining table May 20.

"It is certainly unfair to charge the AFT with hindering negotiations," Bartos said

"OUR IMPRESSION is that all of these matters have been settled amicably. Instead of healing wounds, I see the board driving a deeper wedge between the faculty and the board," Bartos said.

The board also said in its statement that it is not bound by the faculty's referendum supporting affiliation with the AFT. "We haven't been put in the position of having to recognize the AFT because an argreemnt was signed with the faculty senate," said Board Chairman Shirley Munson, who presented the board's position Thurs-

Mrs. Munson said the board did not state its position on the contract dispute earlier because board members were threatened with contempot of court citations if they discussed negotiation matters.

Mrs. Munson said the board spent about $20,000 on legal fees "since we were brought into court by the faculty senate and we had no choice but to defend ourselves."

CONTRACT TALKS between the board and faculty began early this year but ended abruptly in April when the board declared negotiations had ended. The board then voted teacher a $1,275 raise and teachers filed suit against the board in an attempt to force them back to the bargaining table.

Negotiations resumed May 20 when Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen ordered the board to negotiate on a daily basis until June 1, when a recognition agreement with the senate expired.

The board appealed Judge Cohen's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court and the Illinois Supreme Court but both courts refused to overturn the lower court ruling. Mrs. Munson said the board will resppeal the court-ordered negotiations. "In the absence of an Illinois statute governing collective bargaining for employes of community colleges, we believe there is no authority for court-ordered negotiating sessions," the board said in its state-Mrs. Munson said the board broke off negotiations in April because the faculty wanted to negotiate salary ranges and the board said it was not a negotiable item under the recognition

governance of the college" and that is the responsibility of the board, she said In December, the board established maximums alaries of $18,250 for instructors, $21,000 for assistant professors; $24,140 for associate professors and $27,760 for professors.

The agreement signed Monday, which still has to be ratified by the faculty and board, grants a $1,375 raise to all faculty members except those whose increased salary will exceed the maximum set for their job.

of the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health has approved a federal construction grant application for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, but money may not be available.

Robert Anderson, director of the mental health department's community services division, said the committee recommended approval of both the local grant application and one from the Garfield Park area of Chi-

"The problem is the funds re-quested by Garfield Park equal the full amount ($631,000) available," Anderson said.

THE GARFIELD PARK application also takes preference over the Elk Grove-Schaumburg application because its "need" ranking - based in

The Citizens' Advisory Committee part on the poverty level - is higher. Anderson said there is a possibility other federal funds could be found for the Elk Grove-Schaumburg project.

The local agency sought $264,000 to help build a $660,000 permanent facility at the corner of Nerge and Rohlwing roads on two acres donated by Elk Grove Village and SBL Corp. The center now operates out of three rented locations in Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg.

"We will be contacting the federal government as soon as possible to see whether any other funding is possible. although we are not optimistic we will

GEORGE T. SPEES, president of the local mental health center board, was more optimistic than Anderson.

"I really think we can get the money but we'll have to work at it," spees said Thursday. "Our effort now will be to contact people on the federal level as it is out of the state's hands."

Anderson said both the Elk Grove-Schaumburg and Garfield Park grant applications were forwarded to the regional office of the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare which will make the final decision on the grant award in September.

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Mental Health Center will be unable to build its new facility if it does not obtain the federal funds. Pledges of $100,000 from each township for the building fund are revocable if the federal grants are not obtained.
